from the National Guard, Perot demanded his resignation on paper, but he refused. Perot then relieved him outright, Graham said, and accused him of disloyalty.

Perot was not available for comment.

"I think it's bad when a person is forced to sacrifice their career to do what is right," Graham said. "They seem to judge personal loyalty to commanders in the Guard higher than they judge personal integrity."

"I know that they're wrong. Resigning would be the easy way out, but I know I'm right. It'll hurt my record badly."

Graham said he told Perot the ethics and honor of the National Guard officers has been damaged by the Guard investigation.

Graham said he will protest the expulsion, but he's not sure what channels he will use.

"I will fight it," he said, "because there are principles involved."

Graham is continuing investigation of the matter.

Ambassador warned U.S. of invasion

United Press International
WASHINGTON — Former Ambassador to Moscow, M. V. Toon said today he warned the Department "almost daily" that the Soviet Union might invade Afghanistan.

"Without being disrespectful to the president, I was somewhat surprised that he was surprised it happened in Afghanistan," said Toon of Carter's comment that the invasion had caused him to change his mind about the Russians.

Toon, who was replaced last year as chief envoy to Moscow, said the administration had plenty of warning that the Soviets might launch such a thrust.

"Certainly, when I was ambassador in Moscow, we reported daily our feeling that, if necessary, the Soviets would move into Afghanistan with force in order to gain their power position," he said.

"This was simply consistent with past Soviet behavior."

Toon was interviewed on NBC-TV "Today" program.

In a New Year's eve interview ABC's Frank Reynolds, President Carter said:

"My opinion of the Russians changed more drastically in the week than even the previous two one-half years before that. It was now dawn upon the world, the magnitude of the action that the Soviets undertook in invading Afghanistan."

At another point in that interview Carter said, "This action of the Soviets has made a more dramatic change in my opinion of what the Soviets' ultimate goals are in doing things they've done in the past time I've been in office."
