Arrests may link to Judge Wood death

United Press International
EL PASO — The arrest of three men on federal weapons violations in Philadelphia could provide a lead in the assassination of U.S. Judge John H. Wood Jr., a newspaper reported Monday.

The El Paso Herald-Post quoted a high Justice Department source as saying the arrests on Jan. 5 were not directly related to the Wood case, "but it's a red hot lead, and there are some very close connections to Jimmy Chagra."

Chagra, an El Paso native convicted of narcotics trafficking, has been a fugitive since his conviction of continuing criminal enterprise at Austin last year.

Bradley Bryant, 35, of Savannah, Ga.; his cousin, Larry Earl Bryant, 38, of Midway, Ky.; and Roger Dale Barnard, 29, of Lexington, Ky., and Kilgore, were arrested by Philadelphia policemen and agents of the Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms executing a search warrant.

Among equipment confiscated from the rooms of the Airport Sheraton Hotel in Philadelphia, occupied by the trio for seven days, were several weapons, pistols, silencers, ski masks, false identification documents, bogus permits to carry firearms in several states and "electronic warfare" equipment including telephone scramblers and sophisticated telephone security devices built into briefcases, federal officials said.

The newspaper quoted a source close to the investigation as saying the men tried unsuccessfully to identify themselves as CIA agents during the arrests.

"These guys are heavies, for sure," the source told the Herald-Post.

Bradley Bryant was taken into custody at the Philadelphia International Airport while awaiting a Delta Airlines flight to Atlanta. Agents found a .38-caliber magnum two-shot derringer inside his luggage, according to the federal firearms complaint against the trio. All three men had false Kentucky driver licenses, federal officials said, and Bradley Bryant also allegedly possessed false firearms permits from Pennsylvania, Georgia and Nevada.

Charles "Chuck" Peruto Jr., a Philadelphia attorney, told the Herald-Post he represented the three men through a Springfield, Mass. lawyer named Phillip Ryan, who was identified in the bond hearing as a "business partner" of Bradley Bryant.

A man identifying himself as Phillip Ryan accompanied Salvatore Michael Caruana of Boston when Caruana appeared before the El Paso grand jury that indicted Chagra last Feb. 28. Caruana also appeared at Chagra's El Paso bond reduction hearing last March and before the San Antonio grand jury last October, pleading the Fifth Amendment to avoid testifying although contending he knew nothing about the Wood killing.

Wood was scheduled to preside over Chagra's trial at the time he was ambushed and shot in the back outside his San Antonio apartment on May 29, 1979.

U.S. District Judge Adrian Spears of San Antonio said he would rule when Caruana is subpoenaed back before the grand jury, expected next month, on whether he must answer the questions or face contempt of court charges.

An Austin jury subsequently convicted Chagra of continuing criminal enterprise, an offense punishable by life imprisonment, but he fled the country before U.S. District Judge William S. Sessions assessed punishment. He would be held under bonds totalling $3 million if cap-

Caruana, a reputed associate of Boston organized crime figure Raymond Patriarcha, also came to El Paso after the Dec. 21, 1978, killing of attorney Lee Chagra, a brother of Jimmy. Caruana said he was employed as a "private investigator" by the Chagra family.

Bradley Bryant originally was held in lieu of $75,000 cash bond, and his cousin and Barnard were held in lieu of $50,000 bonds each, but the bonds were reduced to $35,000 and $25,000 respectively. Bradley Bryant posted the federal bond on Friday, but immediately was taken into custody by Pennsylvania authorities on state firearms charges.

Federal investigators also were interested in evidence, including receipts, which allegedly showed one of the three men arrested had spent "about $300,000 over the last six to eight months," the newspaper reported.

Federal sources also told the newspaper that Bradley Bryant, who had $23,000 in cash in his possession when arrested, headed a firm known as "Executive Protection Services," which Assistant U.S. Attorney R. Rivera-Soto of Philadelphia described as "a roving outfit."

The protection firm reportedly was operated at Bryant's 3 1/2 acre estate in the Philadelphia suburb of Devon, Pa., until it burned last year, the Herald-Post quoted Philadelphia sources as saying.

"As late as last August, Bryant's protective firm allegedly provided 'bodyguards' for Jimmy Chagra," the report said.

The newspaper said it contacted a Mrs. Sara Barnard by telephone in Kilgore who identified herself as the wife of Roger Dale Barnard and said she did not know the whereabouts of her husband. "He goes different places all the time," the woman said.
