U.S. condemns Soviet vetoes

United Press International
WASHINGTON — The White House charged Monday that the Soviet veto in the United Nations of economic sanctions against the Tehran government "is aimed at advancing Soviet designs in Iran."

The U.N. Security Council voted 10-2 Sunday night for the sanctions, but the U.S.-sponsored measure was vetoed by the Soviet Union.

In a statement condemning the Soviet action, a White House report said that over the next several days, the United States will work with other nations to seek to implement sanctions against Iran for its refusal to free 50 U.S. hostages held in the U.S. embassy in Tehran since Nov. 4.

The statement said that, at the president's direction, Deputy Secretary of State Warren Christopher is now in Europe to discuss further actions with European allies.

The White House statement charged that by its two vetoes in the past week — the other against a resolution denouncing the Russian invasion of Afghanistan — "The Soviet Union has opposed this effort of the international community, including the United States, to resolve the crisis in Iran through peaceful means. Meanwhile, it is seeking to crush the independence of Afghanistan through military force."

The statement went on to say that the Soviet vetoes "expose, for all the world to see, the Soviet Union's disregard for international law and the world's machinery of peace."

"The veto does nothing to lessen the world community's condemnation of their acts," the White House statement said. "Nor does it lessen Iran's isolation from the world. In spite of the veto, we are confident that nations will act to maintain the rule of law."

U.S. to impose Iran sanctions despite veto

United Press International
WASHINGTON — A State Department spokesman said Monday it would go ahead with unilateral sanctions against Iran, despite the Soviet veto of such a move in the United Nations.

Describing the Soviet veto as a "cynical act which once again proves Soviet contempt for international law," department spokesman Hodding Carter said, "We will act as though the resolution had been put into effect."

The vetoed resolution called for the end of all commercial sales to Iran, with the exception of food and medicine, and a reduction in the level of diplomatic contacts with the regime.

The United States is prepared to follow through and increase the cost and pressure to Iran for the holding of hostages," Carter said.

He said the United States has some indications that the measures that have already been taken "have caused shortages and economic dislocation in Iran."

Carter added that Deputy Secretary of State Warren Christopher is now in Europe discussing possible sanctions with European allies.

Beef producers test bill vote set

United Press International
WASHINGTON — Assistant Agriculture Secretary Bobby Smith reminded beef producers Monday to register early for referendum voting on establishing a national beef research and promotion program.

Beef producers who owned cattle in 1979 can register Jan. 28-Feb. 6 at county Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service offices.

Voting will be by secret ballot Feb. 19-22. Registration and voting may be done by mail.

The program, if approved, would be financed by assessments on cattle sold.

Part of the money would be used for research on diet and health questions concerning beef and to present the research results to consumers.

Space shuttle trial launch OK Monday

United Press International
CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. — The National Aeronautics and Space Administration Monday started the fifth and most comprehensive simulated flight test for the first space shuttle to be launched later this year.

Backup crew members, Air Force Col. Joe Engel, and Navy Cmdr. Richard Truly, were at the controls of the space ship Columbia when the test was started at 2 a.m. Monday.

The first actual space shuttle mission is scheduled to last 54 hours. This simulated test includes a dress rehearsal of the launch and ascent into orbit, 48 hours of orbital maneuvers and return to earth for landing.

During the simulated orbital portion, backup crew members will alternate with prime crew members former Navy Captain John Young and Navy Cmdr. Robert Crippen.
