CS planners seek views of citizens

By KATHLEEN HARTNER
City Reporter

Recommendations made by College Station residents in response to a city planning-study questionnaire will be acted on as soon as a list of citizen responses has been compiled, City Planner Albert Bravenc said.

Of the 2,900 questionnaires mailed in November, about 25 percent have been returned.

After the list is finished, Bravenc said, an advisory committee appointed by the City Council will hold neighborhood meetings to discuss future city planning.

The planning-study program being conducted to determine citizens' feelings and ideas on current facilities and services in the City of College Station has been named Mayor Laurence Bravenc said. In order to protect the environment, Bravenc said, the city will plan ahead.

"Since 1970," Bravenc said, "City of College Station has become still one of the fastest growing cities in the state." He said the population has doubled, and the industrial, residential and commercial growth is continuing.

The questionnaire, which was randomly mailed to College Station residents, asked for background information from the citizen and provided a rating list to determine the efficacy of city police protection, community appearance and shopping facilities.

You never seem to hear about the people who are cured of cancer. I am one of them.

My cancer was discovered early. Because I went for a PAP test regularly.

I want you to have a PAP test. Make an appointment for one right now. And keep having the test regularly for the rest of your life.

The rest of your life may be a lot longer if you do.

I know, I had cancer and I lived.

Have a PAP test. It can save your life.

American Cancer Society.
