Registration deadline set

Anyone wishing to vote in the May 3 primaries must register by April 2. Buddy Winn, Brazos County tax assessor-collector, said registration applications are available in the tax office at the Brazos County Courthouse, from the League of Women Voters and from Texas A&M University campus political organizations.

Persons who do not permanently reside in Brazos County can register to vote in their home counties or in Brazos County.

There is a place on the front of the registration card to designate which county it is to be sent to, and Winn said that all one needs to do is to write in the name of the county in which he wants to vote.

He said that students who wish to vote in Brazos County should put down where in the county they live, not a post office box number, in the space marked "permanent address." The reason for this, Winn said, is so that the tax office personnel can figure out which precinct the student must vote in.

Winn cautions people not to register more than once. If a person does not receive or loses his registration card, he should notify the county tax office.

Shoot-out winners to sit on bench

By JANA SIMS
City Reporter

This Saturday, the first-place winners of the Bryan-College Station Basketball Shoot-out will join the Aggie bench at the A&M-Rice game.

The Shoot-out — a fund raising event for the Brazos Valley Rehabilitation Center where kids were sponsored an amount of money for each basket made — was open to 4th through 12th graders in six Brazos Valley counties.

As part of their prize, these first-place winners will help warm the Aggie bench: Bryan Phelps, Heather Malinak (elementary division); West

Hansen, Neal Wellmann, Carrie Osmum (junior high division); and George Teetes and Patricia Carroll (high school division).

Heather Malinak, a fifth-grader at Brenham Elementary made 27 baskets and earned $437.41. She said she entered the Shoot-out to help the handicapped and she "thought it'd be fun."

West Hansen, an eighth-grader at Navasota Junior High, said he entered the contest to help Easter Seals and because his coach wanted him to. West earned about $370 with the 78 baskets he made.

About 285 kids participated and earned $18,702 for the rehabilitation center, and pledges are still being turned in. Dorothy Kinard, secretary of the rehabilitation center, said the center is not federally funded and pays for patient care and other expenses with memorials and donations.

Jim Thompson, executive director of the rehabilitation center, said, "The money raised through the efforts of these fine boys and girls ... will go a long way towards making lives more productive and happier."
