1 quint breathes OK, others are struggling

United Press International
CHICAGO — The first and largest of the Moeller quintuplets born at Northwestern Memorial Hospital was breathing Wednesday without the help of respiratory support, but his siblings still needed the help of breathing aids.

The quint, four boys and a girl, were born nine weeks prematurely Saturday to Patricia and Allen Moeller. The mother, 27, became pregnant after taking the fertility drug, Colmed.

Allen Jake Jr., who weighed 3 pounds, 2 ounces at birth, was taken off a respirator Tuesday and put in an incubator, hospital officials said.

"He is breathing without the aid of any respiratory support. His condition has improved somewhat," the spokesman said.

The four smallest infants were given additional respiratory help Monday because their condition had worsened slightly. They remained in fair condition in the intensive care nursery.

The other boys are Mark Patrick, 2 pounds, 7 ounces; David Thomas, 2 pounds, 15 ounces; and Nicholas John, 2 pounds, 14½ ounces. The girl, Elizabeth Rose, weighed 2 pounds, 3½ ounces.

Mrs. Moeller was expected to remain in the hospital at least through the weekend. The quintuplets were born by Caesarean section.

New England gets first black mayor

United Press International
NEW LONDON, Conn. — It could be expected that the son of a man with the grand old American name of Andrew Jackson might one day seek elective office. He did, and now he is New England's first black mayor.

Leo E. Jackson's $1,000-a-year job is largely ceremonial, but he likes what it tells young people.

"It shows that someone who doesn't have a half-dozen different degrees or doesn't come from an affluent family can succeed through hard work and a lot of help from other people," said Jackson, whose late father was a namesake of the seventh president of the United States, was a Springfield, Mass., real estate man.

New London, a city of 30,600, is an old whaling port with a rich past and a new downtown.

Nathan Hale taught school across the street from City Hall. And,

Eugene O'Neill leaned on the city in some of his famous plays.

Jackson, 54, a Democrat, was elected one of seven council members in citywide voting in 1979, rebounding from a 38-vote defeat two years before. The council, comprised now of five Democrats and two Republicans, elects one of their number mayor. Jackson was sworn in Dec. 3.

He started as a public service volunteer for the Easter Seal Rehabilitation Center and later was named a redevelopment agency commissioner. Four years ago, he won a seat on the board of education, the first black to do so in the city's 333-year history.

The mayor, a trim 6-footer, wears a white button in his lapel, symbolizing support for President Carter's handling of the Iranian hostage crisis.

His first proclamation endorsed Carter's hostage posture and city police cars have white streamers fluttering from their aerials.

Jackson has endorsed Carter's election bid because the president implemented equal rights legislation that Jackson says up until then were "just pieces of paper." He said the president "has been a great deal of help changing the total welfare system, helping those who can't help themselves."

"A lot of people are criticizing the president, saying he could have done better, but I think he has done an outstanding job," he said at his first office in city council chambers. He has an office and makes do in typical New England fashion.

Jackson is an instructor in management-by-objectives and welding at the submarine yards of the Electric Boat Division of the General Dynamics Corp., a job that allows him time for some of his mayoral duties.

He is working toward a degree in business administration.

High cost, low supply in U.S. energy news

United Press International
WASHINGTON — Members of Congress Tuesday accused the Energy Department of indifference to soaring home fuel costs. A public interest group said the agency has failed to punish refiners for multibillion-dollar overcharges.

BATON ROUGE, La.: Representatives of Texaco Inc., one of the largest suppliers of natural gas in the state, said Tuesday shortages in supplies may make it impossible for the company to meet the fuel demands of major state industries as early next year.

LISBON, Portugal: Angola has raised the price of its crude oil by 6.3 percent from $31.79 to $33.80 per barrel, the official Angolan news agency ANGOP reported Tuesday. RIYADH, Saudi Arabia: Venezuela, South America's chief oil producer, began summit talks Tuesday with Saudi Arabia aimed at seeking a single-tier oil pricing system for the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries. NEW YORK: Standard Oil Co. of Indiana said Tuesday an initial bid its well in the Overthrust belt southwestern Wyoming revealed "significant" natural gas flow at a rate of 8.5 million cubic feet a day.

2 starving sisters eat newspaper last supper

United Press International
COLUMBUS, Ohio — The bodies of two elderly sisters were found in their home where they apparently starved to death, after first trying to survive by eating newspaper.

Police said Naomi Schreiner, 76, was found Monday in a bed. Her sister Ruth, 74, was found lying on the floor of an upstairs bedroom. They apparently had been dead for several days.

"An assistant coroner at the scene attributed their deaths to starvation and dehydration," said Detective Sgt. John Shawkey.

Police found little rolls of newspaper on plates as if the women had been eating them. "It appeared the way it (the paper rolls) was situated around it appeared they were eating the paper," said Shawkey.

Neighbors described the Schreiner sisters as "eccentric" and "proud girls, but odd."

Carter gives draft plan

United Press International
WASHINGTON — The first inductee could report within 13 days after the president declares a national emergency and up to 100,000 men and women could be processed in less than a month under President Carter's contingency plans for a draft.

In telling Congress this Tuesday, Carter said he has no intention of moving to institute the draft "under present circumstances." But in the event America returns to the draft, he said, the first chosen will be 20-year-olds picked by lottery.

"If it ever becomes necessary to draft anyone, Selective Service will operate under the concept of random selection (lottery) based upon year and date of birth," Carter said in a report sent to Capitol Hill.

The first year-of-birth group from which inductees will be drawn is the one that contains those who reach 20 in a given calendar year," he said.

His contingency plan was included in a 62-page report on Selective Service reform that Congress directed the president to prepare last year. It includes his proposal for immediate military registration of men and women born in 1960 and 1961.

'Newscam' finds 8 honest New Yorkers

United Press International
NEW YORK — There are at least eight honest people in New York City, the New York Daily News reported Wednesday in revealing the results of its "Newscam" probe — a tongue-in-cheek takeoff on the FBI's "Abscam" investigation.

Monday morning, the newspaper said, an "undercover operative dropped a black plastic wallet" in front of the U.S. District Courthouse in Brooklyn.

It was the first of 10 wallets planted near the building, "where coincidentally prosecutors were piecing together the Abscam case," the account reported.

A card inside identified the owner of the wallet as Fergus McNulty and gave a Brooklyn address and telephone number. A hidden camera man snapped each of 10 pedestrians who retrieved the wallets.

By noon Tuesday, the paper reported, there were eight calls to the phone number who said they had the wallet, which contained $5.

The newspaper said "this is a considerable higher incidence of integrity than reported by Abscam agents who are currently investigating the integrity of politicians and reported out half of them have accepted bribes."
