Arkansas embarrassed; Ags go for it tonight

United Press International
LINCOLN, Neb. — Kansas State can do many things in the defensive end with its 3-2 zone. But the Wildcats never thought they could embarrass an Eddie Sutton-coached team with it.

That's just what Kansas State did Thursday night in handing Sutton his worst defeat in his six years at Arkansas, 71-53, to advance to the second-round of the NCAA Midwest subregional against Louisville.

Texas A&M plays Missouri Valley Conference champion Bradley in Denton tonight in another subregional playoff game. Game time for the Aggies is 9:30 p.m.

The Aggies, 24-7 for the year, will face a 23-9 Bradley team for the right to play North Carolina. The winner of that game — set for 2:37 p.m. Sunday — will advance to the NCAA regionals in Houston's Summit.

Texas A&M advanced to the subregionals by defeating Arkansas, 52-50, for the Southwest Conference Tournament crown.

The aggressive Kansas State zone, spearheaded by senior guard Glenn Marshall, forced 20 Arkansas turnovers and harassed the Razorbacks into a 37 percent shooting performance.

Marshall recorded six steals and also blocked two shots as his Wildcats beat Arkansas for the second time this season.

"That's the best zone I've seen this year," said Arkansas forward Alan Zahn, one of only two players in double figures for the Hogs with 13.

"Texas A&M has a good one, but not like this one."

"It was tough moving the ball around the perimeter against them, much less shooting it. They always had a guy in your face when you wanted to put it up. They play great defense."

The key for the Wildcats was neutralizing All-Southwest Conference center Scott Hastings, who entered the game averaging a team-high 16.5 points. Kansas State held Hastings without a point in the first half and limited him to eight in the second before he fouled out with 4:27 left.

"We wanted to make it difficult for Hastings to get the ball," said Kansas State coach Jack Hartman. "He's very active with a very quick release. Our goal was to minimize the number of times he'd get the ball inside."

Hastings did not get the ball in the lane until 19:41 remained in the game and he converted that for his first basket of the game. He finished just 3 of 10 from the field. Guard U.S. Reed, the outside shooting threat in Hastings' absence from the scoring column, hit 8 of 18 shots for a team-leading 16 points.

"We played poorly and we shot poorly," said Sutton, "and you can't do that against a big, physical team like Kansas State. They can go all the way if they keep playing like that."

Sutton previously lost by 11 points to both Mississippi and Kentucky for his worst losses at Arkansas. Both setbacks came in his first season there.

Ali wants to try again

United Press International
CHICAGO — Standing in the wings preparing for still another comeback is former world heavyweight champion Muhammad Ali who apparently has agreed to fight John Tate in Taipei for the World Boxing Association crown.

Ali, 38, agreed Wednesday to fight Tate in a bout tentatively scheduled for late June. A formal contract was to be signed later.

"The compensation to both fighters is a world record for any boxing match in history," said Bob Arum, president of Top Rank. An attorney for Ali's manager, Herbert Muhammad, was quoted in the Chicago Tribune as saying the two fighters would split $14 million.

Ali, who has won the heavyweight title three times in his career, now weighs 266 pounds and began training Tuesday in Deer Lake, Pa.

Softball team putting 2-0 record on the line

After defeating No. 1-ranked Texas Women's University in a double-header last Friday, the Texas A&M women's softball team takes its 2-0 record to Denton today for a rematch against TWU in a three-game series before heading to the West Coast for a very important road trip.

The Aggies, currently ranked fourth in the nation, will be on the road for a week to face six teams. Some of the games will be against the nation's top ranked teams, putting A&M's national ranking in jeopardy.

Head softball coach Bill Galloway realizes the importance of the road trip and said, "If we go on this road trip and win at least six games, we could probably still be right there in the rankings and that will enhance our chances of going to nationals."

After the three-game set with TWU, whom the Ags have never beaten in Denton, the Aggies will pack their gear and head to the West Coast. The Ag's first opponent will be No. 2-ranked UCLA, last year's national champions.

Galloway figures UCLA will be the toughest team on the road trip and said, "UCLA is a very experienced veteran squad. They didn't lose a player off last year's team and their pitching staff is incredible. They only allowed 3 runs in nine games at the national championship tournament last year."

After leaving UCLA, the Aggies will play a double-header against Golden West Community College before facing No. 8-ranked California State-Fullerton in another double-header.

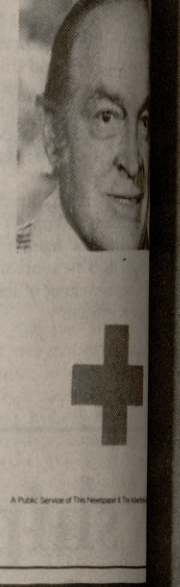

According to Galloway, Fullerton is a strong offensive team and has outstanding hitting. But Galloway hopes to combat their offensive attack with his two young pitchers, sophomore Shan McDonald and freshman Lori Stoll.

After the brief showdown with Fullerton, the Aggies will then travel to Chapman College for a two-game set before facing No. 5-ranked California Polytechnic at Pomona, in what will be the team's final two games of the road trip.

The Aggies are as healthy as they've been all year and Galloway added the team is in excellent mental shape also. "Since our team (four freshmen, five sophomores, one junior and one senior) needed something to depend on because of the loss of the two wins earned by the ranked TWU did each game. Galloway's only worry or not his pitching staff hold up since the team games in eight days and many top-ranked teams back.
