Hospital quiet over surgery mix details

PHILADELPHIA — Graduate Hospital authorities Monday imposed a rigid silence about an operating room mix-up in which two women each underwent surgery intended for the other.

Attorney Bernard Glassman, the sole designated spokesman for the hospital, remained in meetings through the morning.

The Philadelphia County Medical Society, however, said it was studying the mix-up before becoming actively involved in the matter. Society executive director Richard Nelson said his group "may well" probe the foul-up, much as it investigated emergency room problems in Philadelphia hospitals a decade ago.

Dr. James E. Nixon, head of the department of orthopedic surgery, confirmed Sunday that the mistake occurred last Thursday, but refused to elaborate.

Officials would not identify the victims of the foul-up or the nature of the operations.

But a report in the Philadelphia Inquirer said one of the patients was a 58-year-old Southwest Philadelphia woman named Annie Robinson who was to receive an operation on her lower back, but instead underwent surgery to remove her parathyroid glands.

The other woman was to have had the parathyroid glands removed, the newspaper said, and underwent surgery for her lower back.

Court refuses census delay

WASHINGTON — The Supreme Court Monday refused a request by an immigration reform group to delay the 1980 census, scheduled to begin April 1, unless illegal aliens are excluded from the official count.

The justices turned down a motion for an injunction by the Federation for American Immigration Reform, the Committee for Representative Government, a Los Angeles-based group, and 26 members of Congress.

They argued that including illegal aliens would "dilute" the population base for congressional reapportionment and the allotment of federal funds to states.

The citizen groups and the politicians asked the Supreme Court to put off the census pending a full review of their claim.

The federation said the government has campaigned to promote the census and encourages illegal aliens to respond.

The government said delaying the census will cost more than $150 million and postpone the reapportionment of Congress and many state legislatures.

"As a consequence, significant portions of the electorate, whose vote is currently undervalued, will continue to be deprived of fair representation," the government said.
