

Skeet club holds shoot

By STEVE SISNEY

This Saturday, the Texas A&M Skeet and Trap Club will be hosting an open gauge skeet and trap shoot at the Bryan-College Station Gun Club at 10 a.m.

Participants will compete in three-man teams, with teams being divided into three classes based on scores at the end of the competition. The classes will be arranged according to shooting ability, and trophies will be awarded to the teams with the highest overall score in each class.

Each team will shoot 225 targets (75 targets per man) in the areas of skeet, doubles from all stations (a form of skeet), and trap.

Although everyone is eligible to attend, no more than one Bryan-College Station Gun Club or TAMU club member per team is allowed.

Money raised by the club at this event will go towards helping pay the way for the Texas A&M Skeet and Trap team to attend the National Collegiate Skeet and Trap Shooting Championships in Peoria, Ill., April 22-26.

An extramural team, the Aggie squad won the event in 1978 and captured third place last year, finishing seven targets behind the winners.

Tennis team to face 13th ranked Horns

By MIKE BURRICHTER
Sports Editor

The Texas A&M men's tennis team, off to what coach David Kent says is best start ever, will travel to Austin Saturday to face the University of Texas Longhorns.

The Aggies, 12-4, have not beaten the Horns in conference play since 1966. Last fall the Aggies edged the Longhorns in a tournament at Conroe, 5-4.

"I hope we don't have to wait that long to beat them again," laughed Kent. "But we're ready for them."

The Ags are coming off of an impressive showing in the Corpus Team Tournament two weeks ago.

The Ags finished fourth in the 26-team tourney, defeating defending Big Eight champion Oklahoma State and the SMU Mustangs, ranked fourth in the nation, in the process. Arkansas, ranked ninth in the nation, won the tournament, followed by Houston and Clemson, two top twenty teams that beat the Ags in the tourney. The Aggie's victory over SMU was the greatest victory in Aggie tennis history, Kent said.

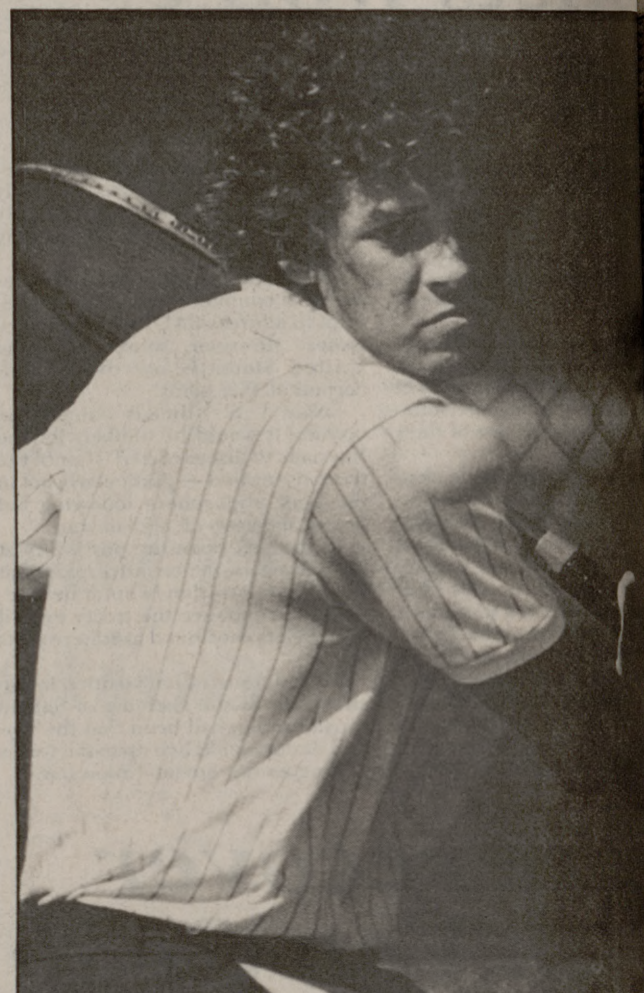

"We've never beaten a team in the top four before," Kent said. "It was our most important win of the season."

SMU, UT, and TCU, all picked to finish in front of the Ags in the Southwest Conference and all ranked in the top twenty, finished behind the Ags in the Corpus Christi event.

Trey Schutz, the Aggie's No. 1 player, is confident his team can beat the Horns.

"We're better than they are," the junior from Galveston said. "The only way they can win is if they get the right match-ups. Coach hasn't really decided who is going to play what (seed) yet."

Schutz almost didn't make the trip, having suffered from the flu this week.

Freshman Tom Judson poises to return a shot during his match against Wayne Barton of Oklahoma City University. Judson lost to Barton 7-6, 7-6 in the Aggies' match Monday, but the Aggies team won the match 7-2. Staff photo by Lee Roy Lebeck.

The women's team travelled to Dallas Thursday to compete in the SMU Invitational tennis tournament. The 13-team tournament, top-seeded Trinity, will begin Saturday.

Softball team ranked fourth

By JOHN BRASHER

Coach Bill Galloway's Texas A&M women's softball team, ranked fourth in the nation, posted an 8-5 record during a 13-game road trip over the spring break and has upped its season record to 10-5.

The Aggies beat No. 5-ranked Texas Women's University two of three games in Denton, then went to the West Coast where they swept two games from No. 6-ranked UCLA, then split double-headers with Golden West Community College, Chapman College and No. 3-ranked Cal Poly of Pomona. The Aggies ran into a wall when they faced No. 7 Cal State-Fullerton and lost a double-header to them by the scores of 4-0 and 2-1.

TWU, ranked No. 1 until this week, has fallen to the Aggies of five games this season.

With the grueling road trip behind them, the Aggies will now have a five-day, nine-game home stand at the home stadium as follows:

Friday, March 21, at McNeese State University (header).

Saturday, March 22, at Northwestern Louisiana State University (header).

Sunday, March 23, 6 p.m., at the University of Minnesota (header).

Monday, March 24, 2 p.m., at the University of Missouri (header).

Tuesday, March 25, 5:30 p.m., at Indiana University (doubleheader).

All of the Aggies' softball games are played at the Bee Creek Sports Complex at the end of Anderson Street in College Station.
