

Magna Carta display viewed by Austinites

United Press International
AUSTIN — Thousands of Texans got a rare look during the weekend at the Magna Carta, the "great charter" of England that guaranteed for the first time basic civil and political liberties.

The 765-year-old English document, which formed the basis for much of the U.S. Constitution, will be displayed in the state through April 27. The rector of an 80-member Episcopal church in Luling arranged the five-week Texas tour after visiting England last year.

The Rev. Robert B. Greene said more than half of Luling's 5,100 inhabitants and many residents from nearby rural areas went to the Church of the Annunciation Friday to view the document.

"We had expected mostly upper middle class," he said, "but we had workers come in from the oil fields and farms. It was a tremendous cross section with a large number of blacks and Mexican-Americans."

The exhibit moved to the LBJ Library Saturday, where several thousand more Texans viewed the specially protected document.

The document will remain on display in Austin through Saturday. Next Monday, the exhibit opens in San Antonio at the Texas Military Institute Library. On April 14 the document will be moved to Houston's Palmer Memorial Episcopal Church and on April 21 to Dallas where the exhibit will remain until April 27.

Admission is free.

The Very Rev. Oliver Fiennes, dean of Lincoln Cathedral in England, handed the document to officials of the University of Texas and Lyndon B. Johnson Library in ceremonies that attracted 500 spectators.

WHAT IS A PARALEGAL CAREER?

A paralegal career is one of the most exciting new careers for college graduates.

A paralegal is a lawyer's assistant who is able to do many tasks traditionally done by attorneys. Not a clerical or a secretarial role, the paralegal is a new legal specialty with excellent job opportunities in law firms, corporate legal departments and banks.

Three months of intensive training in courses taught by law professors and lawyers can give you the skills to interview witnesses, conduct legal research, prepare pleadings, draft transaction documents and prepare cases for trial all under the supervision of an attorney.

The Basic Legal Assistant Course begins June 2, 1980. In addition to the three-month daytime program, the same course is offered as an eight-month evening program. A representative will be at the Career Planning and Placement Center on Tuesday, April 1, 1980.

Wreck was like disaster movie

United Press International
NEW ORLEANS — Passengers aboard the steamboat Natchez that collided in driving rain with an Exxon crude oil tanker in the Mississippi River said they had little advance warning of the accident, which injured 20 people.

One person remained hospitalized Sunday with a broken hip, a spokesman for Hotel Dieu Hospital said. The others were treated and released from various hospitals for cuts and bruises.

One passenger, Alan Ellis of New Orleans, said the collision triggered a flashback to the movie, "The Poseidon Adventure," in which a luxury cruise ship flips upside down after a tidal wave.

"It was just like the movie," Ellis said. "Everyone was enjoying themselves, the band was playing and I was at the bar getting some drinks, when all of a sudden without warning everyone was on the floor."

"People were hollering and screaming at first, and tables and chairs were all over the place. Nobody really knew what happened, but the thought of the boat sinking was on everyone's mind, I'm sure. It was on my mind because of that movie."

Coast Guard officials scheduled a formal inquiry into the collision today in Baton Rouge, but they refused to speculate if the bad weather, which reduced visibility to near zero, contributed to the crash.

"It was raining heavily and visibility was poor, but I'm not in any position to say what was the cause of the accident," a Coast Guard spokesman said Sunday.

The Exxon Baltimore, carrying 14.5 million gallons of Alaskan crude oil, collided at 5 p.m. Saturday near the Greater New Orleans Bridge with the Natchez, which was headed downriver. The tanker continued to Baton Rouge.

The collision tore a gash in the tanker's hull beneath the waterline, but none of the crude spilled into the river. The Natchez sustained heavy damage to its bow but never was in danger of sinking, the Coast Guard spokesman said.

Man looks for 'dead' brother

United Press International
CANTERBURY, Conn. — Roger Dumas wants to bring his brother home.

He hasn't seen him for 30 years, and he doesn't even know if he is alive.

But the name of Roger Dumas on a tragic roster compiled by the U.S. State Department—389 American servicemen who have been prisoners of war in Korea and still considered missing—hasn't helped.

Their families were told they were presumed dead.

Dumas challenges that to have documented proof his brother was abandoned in a camp more than 25 years ago for almost three decades, waged a lonely battle to find him.

Dumas calls it the "biggest up this country has ever seen." Retired Maj. Gen. John Laub, former chief U.S. negotiator in South Korea, pushing for a congressional investigation into the case.

"I don't think there's any other way," Dumas says. "I've been in the camps and was left behind in 1953."

Roger Dumas was a 21-year-old who joined the U.S. Army in 1950. He was in action in North Korea. The government's presumptive finding of death in 1954.

But a former POW, Cecil Stenon of Seattle, Wash., was wrong. He and Dumas were the same outfit, and held in the same POW camp—Camp 5, near North Korea. Stenon was ready to swear under oath that Roger Dumas alive in that camp April, 1953.

Preston said he left Dumas sick and frail and me to let the people of the States know that he and the left behind in Camp 5 were alive."

The last official exchange of prisoners was in September 1953. Hostilities ended.

Robert Dumas said he was in the plastic in the Over 100, Army to hold a hearing to brother's status — from action to prisoner of war. request was denied.

Dumas, 49, began the his brother shortly after taken prisoner in 1950. He voted himself to full time, 58, of the serious accident left him work six years ago.

A 1957 Army Summary Roger Dumas said Preston POWs told intelligence officers their repatriation that Dumas was alive but in portion in Camp 5.

However, the Army was a case of mistaken identity. A private named Dumas Deumas was also at Camp 5 charged in August 1953. He said he also used the Dumas, the name under was discharged.

However the Army now is no evidence now that Dumas was ever a prisoner. The picture the Dumas family shows showing Roger, the official established that in the photo was not Roger military personnel records Roger Dumas and Dumas Deumas were destroyed in 1973 fire at the National Records Center in St. Louis.
