Gridder has surgery, is out for spring

By MIKE BURRICHTER
Sports Editor

After one week of spring football drills, Texas A&M University coach Tom Wilson is faced with filling the void left from the departure of two of his fullbacks.

Saturday's scrimmage proved to be a costly one when second-team fullback Ronnie James and third-stringer Roger Wiley went down with injuries that will cause them to miss the rest of spring drills.

James, a freshman from Yates High School in Houston, was the first to go when he fractured a fibula and dislocated his ankle on his left leg. Wiley, also about to enter his sophomore year, left later with damaged ligaments in his right knee.

James has already had his leg set and put in a cast. Wiley underwent surgery in Houston Monday afternoon.

"They are both definitely out for the spring," Wilson said.

The loss of the two has left Wilson with only one fullback, returning starter David Hill, a junior from San Antonio.

Elvis Walker, who is currently the team's third-string tailback, will be moved to the back-up fullback slot. Wilson said Walker, a sophomore from Temple, will make the switch rather than Ernest Jackson, who is listed as the team's co-No. 1 tailback along with Johnny Hector. Wilson had said earlier he planned to move Jackson, a sophomore from Rosenberg, to fullback.

"We can't move Jackson," Wilson said. "He and Johnny Hector are our two No. 1 tailbacks."

As for the team's performance last week, Wilson was pleased, especially with his first teams on offense and defense.

"It was a good first week," he said. "Our first units looked really good. I thought both of our first units dominated the second teams. Mike Mosley and David Beal ran the first teams well and the line showed some improvement. The first defense was exceptional.

"We've got to make some progress with our second and third units. We do look very solid right now though."

Mosley led the team on three 65-yard touchdown drives, rushing for 49 yards and completing 10 of 15 passes for 163 yards and two touchdowns. Beal directed the team on one 65-yard touchdown drive, and completed three of four passes for 41 yards. Hill scored twice on dives and Pat Flinn and Dan hooked up with Mosley on the down passes.

The team's next scrimmage held Saturday at 10 a.m. in the field.

Night games to begin

Ags light into USC

For the first time in Texas A&M University baseball history, the Aggies will be playing under the lights in College Station.

Wednesday night, the Aggies will host the University of Southern California in what will be the first of many Olsen Field night games. The single game is scheduled to start at 8 p.m., with ceremonies beginning at 7:30 p.m.

Baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn had been scheduled to appear at the opening ceremonies, but will have to attend the major league player-owner meetings in New York. His replacement, Joe Cronin, former American League president, was also scheduled to attend the meetings in New York.

Currently, the baseball team has Hall of Fame umpire Jocko Conlin slated to throw out the first ball at the light dedication.

He also threw out the first ball and umpired at first base for three innings at the opening of the stadium in 1978, when the Aggies entertained the Trojans.

USC will roll into College Station after a four-game series at the University of Texas and today in Austin. The Trojans are 13-10 and are ranked 11th in the nation, three places below the Aggies.

The Ags, coming off of a weekend in Fayetteville, are on the year and 10-4 South Conference play, second in which is 11-1.

Staubach to White — final pass complete

United Press International DALLAS — Through the relatively mild winter and through the early blooming spring, Roger Staubach waited and waited for the urge to hit him.

He waited for the anxiousness to return, the eagerness that would take him to the practice field to begin yet another round of workouts that would carry him to the peak of physical condition.

He listened to coach Tom Landry tell him that his statistics showed him to be at the top of his game. And he listened to general manager Tex Schramm tell him that age is relative; that he — at age 38 — had the body of a much younger man.

But the urge never came and the discussions with Landry and Schramm failed to make a dent.

So on Monday, Staubach did what he had told himself he was going to do from the moment the 1979 football season ended.

He announced he had quarterbacked his last game for the Dallas Cowboys.

In a team meeting Monday morning he joked and kidded long-time friends and then up when he said what they knew — that he was retiring.

Then, in a news conference drew 200 writers and broadcasted live by two local television stations, Staubach finally made his decision public.

He cited his concern for his family (including five children, the youngest is 13) and his concern over possible concussions caused by the five concussions he received last year.

"But when you lump everything together," Staubach said, "I have a feeling down in my gut that time was right. I could not have trained camp unless I was give 100 percent."

The announcement ended a year career in which Staubach gained recognition as one of the finest quarterbacks ever to play football. His career passing (established through a computer formula by the NFL) was 83,511 in the history of the league.

He quarterbacked two Bowl-winning teams and compiled a record of 96-35 in games started. Of those 96 victories were brought about with quarter rallies. Fourteen times Staubach guided the boys to a win in the final two minutes of the game. Under his leadership the Cowboys won more games (1970s) than any other NFL team.

But for all his on-the-field accomplishments, Staubach gave much respect for his family and conduct off the field.

"It won't just be the Dallas boys that will miss him," Staubach said. "The game of professional ball will miss him. We don't miss enough Roger Staubachs in the National Football League."

With Staubach's career at the Cowboys now turn to the NFL veteran Danny White's quarterbacking heroics.

One report last week Staubach would be offered $1 million game by CBS-TV to serve as analyst on NFL telecasts.

"It might help me with the withdrawal symptoms," Staubach
