Irish beat Ag lacrosse team

Notre Dame defeated Texas A&M Tuesday in lacrosse. The Fighting Irish, on their first trip to the Aggie Drill Field, outlasted the tired Aggies in the second half to take a 9-4 victory. It was, in Aggie defenseman Curt Jones' words, the biggest game the Aggies have ever played and their first against a "name" team from the North. The Irish, 1979 Midwest champions, are currently on a tour of the South. They beat the inexperienced Ags with their bench, which was noticeably larger than the Aggies'. "They were just in better condition than we were," tri-captain and coach Guy Grosgebauer said. "And they had a lot more guys than we did."

Grosgebauer, a junior marketing major from Fort Worth, also said the Aggies' inexperience showed. With three years of lacrosse experience, he is a veteran on the Aggie team. "Most of the guys on our team are in their first year of lacrosse," he said. "I started three years ago, when I started school here." The lacrosse team is an extramural club sport, which means there are no scholarships. "We don't recruit anybody," Grosgebauer said. "We get guys who played football and baseball in high school and just want to stay competitive." The Ags' next game will be April 13 against Oklahoma University in Austin.

Aggie Ladies ace Denton track meet

By JON HEIDTKE Sports Reporter Texas A&M women's track team, tuning up for the Texas Relays, turned in an impressive showing at the Texas Women's University Invitational track meet this past weekend in Denton. Although no official score was kept for the team championship, coach Bill Nix said the Aggies would have amassed 115 1/2 points, which would have been enough to win the meet. Leading the way for the Aggies was Sandra Brown. The sophomore from Cotulla who turned in her second straight record-breaking performance, captured first place in the 3,000-meter run. Her time of 9:57.03 eclipsed the school record time of 9:58.3 which she set last week at the Texas Southern Relays. The Aggies dominated the 3,000-meter run, with Lorie Scott and Barbara Collinsworth placing second and fifth, respectively. Scott and Collinsworth also finished first and third respectively in 5,000-meter run. Other Aggies placing high in the meet were: Iris Tipton, who finished second in the shot put; Jan Chesbro, second in the high jump; Vickilee Cobern took second in the discus and Cath Coker came in third in the 10,000-meter run. Cindy Bartlett and Ellen Smith took second and third, respectively, in the 400-meter hurdles, Karen

Morgan finished third in the javelin and Brown added a third in the 1,500-meter run. Versatile Sande Lambert placed fifth in the long jump, the high jump, and the 100-meter hurdles. The Aggie Ladies relay teams also turned in strong performances. Bartlett, Julie White, Paula Lake and Lynne Gamble took third in the 800-meter medley relay and placed fourth in the 400-meter medley. The mile relay team, consisting of Bartlett, White, Lake and Karyn Wooten, finished third. "It was a real good meet, for us," said Nix. "Our times are starting to come down and we are looking forward to the Texas Relays."

Wiley out for season

Roger Wiley, who had just finished strength coach Mike Flynn's off-season weight program as the football team's strongest player, pound for pound, was lost for the season in Saturday's scrimmage. Wiley, a sophomore, damaged ligaments in his right knee and had to be operated on. Team trainer David Heath said Wiley, who had been the team's third-string fullback, would have to go through an eight- or nine-month rehabilitation program. "His chances of playing are pretty slim," Heath said. "You never know, he could heal faster than expected."

but we plan on him missing the season." Heath said Ronnie James, another sophomore fullback injured in Saturday's scrimmage, will have a good chance of playing next season. James fractured a fibula and dislocated his left ankle. Heath said the injury to Wiley was especially ironic because of his strength. "After a weight program like the one they went through, you don't expect injuries like this to happen," Heath said. "We'd been really lucky in the past. This was just a freak accident."

Tom Wilson in hospital

Texas A&M head football coach Tom Wilson entered St. Joseph Hospital Tuesday night to have a kidney stone removed. "Dam Wilson, the coaches wife, said he would remain in the hospital until the stone was removed surgically or by medication. "It's nothing serious, just very painful," she said. Wilson spent a night in the hospital because of a similar problem last week. Wilson was taken to the hospital directly from practice last night. Daun Wilson said her husband will probably stay in the hospital this time until it's out. "Possibly, he'll be out in the morning," she said. "He'll come home right after it's done. Or he'll just go back to the office."

Lights on at Olsen; Ags face Trojans

By MIKE BURRICHTER Sports Editor The University of Southern California will attend its second Texas A&M baseball dedication in three years tonight at Olsen Field. In 1978, the Trojans played the Aggies in the first game ever held at Olsen Field. Tonight, the two will play the first night game at that stadium, and for that matter, the first collegiate night game ever played in College Station. The Ags have been practicing under the lights, completed earlier this year, for the past two weeks. Coach Tom Chandler hasn't been more excited in all of his 22 years at Texas A&M. "We're expecting the largest crowd to ever attend a game at Olsen Field," Chandler said. "InterVarsity Christian Fellowship) Chaplain Gil Miller will start the ceremony." Also on hand, Chandler said, will be C.E. 'Pat' Olsen, Clyde Wells, Chairman of the Board of Regents; and Jocko Conlin, who will throw out the first ball. "Jocko Conlin spent 23 years in the major leagues as an umpire," Chandler said. "He's made several All-Star game appearances, and has umpired in a number of World Series. He's a member of the Cooperstown, Ohio, Baseball Hall of Fame." Conlin, like the Trojans, is making a repeat performance. He threw out the game ball two years ago at the stadium's debut. Baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn was to attend the ceremonies, but he is caught up in the major league player-owner controversy and attending meetings in New York. Joe Cronin, former American League president, was to have pinch-hit for Kuhn, but is attending the same meetings. The Trojans are led by coach Rod Dedeaux, the dean of collegiate baseball coaches. Chandler said he and Dedeaux, whose 1359 victories is almost twice as much as any other collegiate coach has, have been friends ever since Chandler started coaching at Texas A&M, and says he has the utmost respect for the Trojan coach. "He's won 25 Pac-10 Conference championships and 10 national championships," Chandler said. "The Trojans are the New York Yankees of collegiate baseball with their history of winning." Chandler said he'll start freshman Rick Luecken, who because of the upcoming University of Houston series this weekend, will pitch only two or three innings. Luecken will be followed by the other two starters, Robert Slavens and Bobby Taylor. Jack Miska may see action if necessary, Chandler said.
