Study Abroad hosts bag lunch

By MERIL EDWARDS
The Study Abroad Office of Texas A&M University will host a brown bag lunch Thursday to discuss one-month programs open this summer in Latin America. Representatives from Amigos de las Americas will meet with students at noon in 137 Memorial Student Center.
This program is part of the Study Abroad Fair that began Monday.
"What we're trying to accomplish with the fair this week," Mona Rizk-Finne, Study Abroad adviser said, "is to coordinate different opportunities that are available to students wanting to study abroad."
Peace Corps volunteers Monday showed a film of Americans helping farmers in poor countries improve agricultural techniques, and a representative from the American Institute for Foreign Study gave an overview of the institute.
Rizk-Finne said AIFS has two-week and four-week study programs and can often arrange for students to receive credit.
Today at noon in room 137 MSC, Rizk-Finne will have discussed more opportunities, student tours, work permits, train passes, passports and youth hostels and cheap travel in Europe.
Also today, MSC director Wayne Stark was scheduled to have talked about the Experiment, an organization that offers international experiences to students.
The Study Abroad Office, in the office of the vice president of international affairs, was created September. "Our study abroad programs concentrate on American students," Rizk-Finne said. "The only area in the international that is strictly for locals."
The Study Abroad Office is on the second floor of Bizzell Hall wing.
Rizk-Finne said her office is developing a resource library for overseas opportunities. Scholarship information is also available as well as counseling for students who study overseas.
The Study Abroad telephone number is 845-1824.
