Women's soccer team to face undefeated SFA Saturday

By MIKE BURRICHTER

Sports Editor
Alan Heath says he can't afford to promise his team a win if they win this Saturday's game against Stephen F. Austin University. But he's sure he won't have to give his team any incentive.

"We haven't lost to Stephen F. in our last four meetings," Heath said. "We've beaten them twice and have tied twice. Their coach promised the whole team a steak if they win."

The last time the two teams met, the score ended in a 2-2 tie. That was two months ago, in a cold wind at Cain Field. It was so cold, the two teams decided it wasn't worth it to play an overtime period.

Heath is confident. "Neither one of us (the teams) has lost yet this season," he said. "We're 4-0-1 in league play and we'll be 5-0-1 after this game."

The Aggies are coming off a fifth-place finish in the Colorado Women's College in soccer tournament in Colorado Springs. A field of 12 competed in that tournament, and the Ags played four games, winning three and losing one.

Heath was pleased with his team's performance, but wasn't very pleased with the way the the tournament was run.

"The teams that finished third and fourth had lost to teams we had beaten," he said.

Northern Colorado took first place in the tournament, and Heath said he was very impressed with the athletes on that team. Stanford placed second, California at Santa Barbara took third and Arizona finished fourth.

The Aggies played their first game last Friday against Colorado University, which placed 11th in the tournament. Fullback Adele Fairman and right wing Stephanie Barrett scored the Aggie goals in the first half and the teams battled to a defensive stand-off in the second half, giving the Aggies their first victory.

The Aggies lost their second game, 4-1 to Stanford. Heath said his team should have won that one, if it hadn't been for a bad call.

"Oh yes, we could have won that one, for sure," he said. "We had a goal called back that would have put us up 2-0. After that, the altitudes tore us up."

Heath said the thin Colorado air took its toll on his players, whose only out-of-state game previously this year had been in Mexico.

Saturday afternoon the Ags played tournament host Colorado College, which finished eighth. Carol Sullivan scored the game's lone goal in the first half to put the Ags back on the winning track. Heath said Sullivan, whom he moved to the front line from a halfback position, has been superb lately.

"She's scored 10 of our last 17 goals," he said. "She's really been the difference."

Colorado College went on to beat California.

The Ags finished the tournament with a 2-0 win over Colorado State which finished sixth in the tournament, despite a victory over the place Arizona State. Reserve forward Becky Erwin scored one of the first half and Sullivan scored the other in the second half.

Heath, whose team turned up at Trinity the weekend before, said he was proud of his team's performance and just wishes they could have finished higher.

"I'm embarrassed to say we finished fifth," he said. "We really got messed around by the schedule the way they had set it up. We were stuck in the toughest division. I don't know how they figured it that way."

Aggie halfback Donna Ellerby was one of the tournament's Most Valuable Players.

The Lumberjack-Aggie game will be played at 1 p.m. Saturday at Cain Field.

Tennis team begins quest for SWC title

By RICK STOLLE

Sports Reporter
Texas A&M's men's tennis team travels to Corpus Christi today for the Southwest Conference Tennis Tournament. The Ags will complete a match already partially under way with the University of Houston and try to improve their conference record.

The team left today and will complete the match with UH at 3 p.m. The match was called on April 12 due to darkness but Texas A&M has already won the match. The Ags won four singles and one doubles match before it was called.

"The two doubles matches are really important to many of the teams in the conference," said David Kent, Texas A&M tennis coach. Houston is trying to catch the University of Arkansas for the league lead and just a few match wins behind, he said.

Rice is very close to the Ags, only five wins behind in the SWC standings.

"We need to win those doubles stay in front of Rice and give us a shot at TCU," he said.

Arkansas is in the SWC lead with Houston, Texas, SMU, TCU, Texas A&M, Texas Tech and Baylor following. The Ags are in the same position they were last year at this time.

The tournament will be held Friday through Sunday at the Howard Butt Tennis Center in Corpus Christi. The winner will have a chance of receiving a bid for the NCAA tournament, Kent said. The NCAA tournament will be held May 19-24 at Athens, Ga.

Both Arkansas and Texas beat the Ags badly during the season. The Aggies lost tough matches to Texas and SMU, and beat Houston this season. Kent said the Ags have a chance to improve their standing but will have to have a super effort to win the title.

"It is time to have fun," he said. "We've worked hard for a long time."
