

Where were YOUR parents?!

A large crowd turned out for Texas A&M's annual Parents' Day activities last weekend. Parents' Day is an April Sunday set aside by the University to honor Aggie Parents and the contributions they make to their children's education. Events during the weekend included a Corps of Cadets review and awards presentation, the naming of Aggie Parents of the Year, and various organizations' barbecues and dinners.

Both Reveille and one small spectator at Sunday's Parents' Day events appear to be enthralled by some aspect of the activities.
