Innovation Parts & Materials Engineer

Attn: Spring Graduates in Engineering, Mathematics, and other technical disciplines

Texas Instruments Northwest Houston facility (located near 290 and W. Little York) has an immediate opening for a parts and material engineer. This is an excellent initial assignment for getting maximum exposure for all projects within our Digital Systems Group.

The candidate selected will serve as an interface between product design and purchasing while writing technical specifications for purchased parts. The job requires meeting with project engineers, vendor salesmen, drafting personnel, computer programmers, manufacturing engineers, and quality assurance

Specific duties include preparation of smooth draft of procurement specifications for various parts and materials from input supplies by projects. Will also be responsible in establishing/maintaining a data base to standardize parts and materials.

EXCELLENT BENEFITS

- Educational assistance
- Health plan including dental assistance
- Success sharing (profit sharing, stock options, pension plan)
- Salary continuation with long-term disability
- Salary commensurate with experience and performance
