Frat fights are big hit but 'prank' ruins fun

While Sigma Phi Epsilon fraternity was out hosting their successful Fight Nights Friday and Saturday, someone decided they'd have their own boxing match elsewhere. Only this time, it was the fraternity that lost.

"Someone broke into our fraternity house and busted the place all up," said Mike Burrichter, social director for the club. "They turned on all the water in the house, they threw all our pool balls through our windows, they turned over all the furniture, they threw all our potted plants outside, they broke about 50 bottles in a bottle collection we had, and they turned over all the guys' dressers upstairs. When I walked in that night after the fights, there was water coming through the kitchen ceiling like a sieve."

Burrichter said he wasn't sure who was responsible for the "joke-playing," but at least the entire weekend wasn't a loss for the greek group.

The Fourth Annual Fight Nights, held at the Brazos County Pavilion over the weekend, attracted over 3,000 people. This was slightly below the expectations of the promoters, Burrichter said, but he attributed the lower turnout to the cooler temperatures Saturday.

Despite the showing, he said the fraternity sold over 100 kegs of beer, their main source of income.

In the final tally, the team represented by Cell Block Five racked up the most points, followed by Aston Hall and Zacharia's Greenhouse.

In the fraternity division, Sigma Phi Epsilon came in first, followed by Pi Kappa Alpha and Kappa Alpha.

The results:

Open lightweight division: Roy Brantley, Cell Block Five, defeated Bill Takacs, Zacharia's, decision.

Open middleweight: Alan Cooper, Briarwood Apartments, over Joel Akin, technical knockout.

Open light-heavyweight: Doss Carothers, Zacharia's, over Dave St. Germaine, Puryear dorm, decision.

Open heavyweight: Danny Woop, Athletic Attic, over Joe Bloize, Bloize conceded.

Open super-heavyweight: James Zachary, Cell Block Five, over Mike Bailey, Athletic Attic, second round knockout.

Fraternity lightweight division: Jeff Durvea, Sigma Phi Epsilon, over Russ Milam, Milam conceded.

Fraternity middleweight: Gregg Propse, Pi Kappa Alpha, over Rusty Hines, Kappa Alpha, decision.

Fraternity heavyweight: Trey Strake, Pi Kappa Alpha, over Paul Hynes, Sigma Phi Epsilon, technical knockout. Fraternity super-heavyweight Mike Bates, Kappa Alpha, over Alloms, Sigma Phi Epsilon, first round knockout.

Softball team hosts tournament

The Division 1 and Division 2 SWAIW regional women's tournaments will be held at Bee Creek in College Station Wednesday through Friday.

The Texas A&M University women's softball team, ranked in the nation in Division 2, is currently riding a 19-game winning streak, will play the winner of the Northeast Louisiana-West State game at 7 p.m. Wednesday. The Aggies are seeded second in the tournament behind defending national champion Texas Wesleyan University.

The Aggies defeated Arlington last Saturday 2-1 behind the pitching of Lori Shan McDonald to end the season with a record of 37-1.

The championship game of the tournament will be played at 7 p.m. Friday evening.

Ags place 3rd in track

Lifted by three first place finishes, the Texas A&M University women's track team finished third in the women's state championships held Saturday in Austin.

Texas Southern won with 106 points, followed by Texas with 104 and Texas A&M with 98.

The Aggies, coached by Bill Nix, were led by Sande Lambert, who scored a state record of 3,733 points in the pentathlon to claim first place.

Jan Chesbro jumped 5-6 to win the high jump, and Iris Tipton set a Texas A&M record with a winning shot-put toss of 46-2½.

Early Douglas, with a toss of 43-9, finished second in the shot-put behind Tipton.

Texas A&M had four other second place finishers in the meet, with Ellen Smith placing number two in the 400-meter hurdles, posting a time of 62.18.

Vickilee Cobern qualified for the national championships with a 155-9 discus throw.

Lorie Scott finished second in two events, the 3,000- and 1500-meter runs, with times of 10.05 and 4:37.07, respectively.
