Dorm renovations planned

Summer housing available

by CATHY SAATHOFF

Battalion Staff
Six dorms will be open to students attending Texas A&M University this summer.

Coordinator of Housing Services Larry Pollock said the dorms, which include Aston and Dorms 4, 5 and 8 for men, and Mosher and Dorm 3 for women, will open on June 1, and close on Aug. 15.

The Commons cafeteria will also be open during this time.

The cost for each six-week session will be $160.50 for rooms in the Commons and $104 for rooms on the Quad.

Pollock said single occupancy rooms may be given based on availability. Mosher and Aston single occupancy rooms will be $214, and Quad rooms will be $138 per session.

Five-day board plans will cost $153 per session, and seven-day plans will be $169.

Students requesting a room for the summer should fill out an application at the Housing Office in the YMCA Building. Specific room requests may also be made there.

Ron Hilton, Corps area coordinator, said storage arrangements for students who will go home between spring and summer sessions is strictly between students now in the room and those planning to move in for the summer.

Storage items must be moved in before the dorms close on May 9.

Interim housing for students now on campus who will stay here between sessions will be in Fowler and Schumacher dorms.

A three-week stay will cost $75, and the Memorial Student Center cafeteria will be the only dining facility open on campus.

Pollock said he expects a decrease in on-campus students the second session.

John White, coordinator of special services, said dorms not used over the summer will receive over $1 million worth of improvements.

Hotard will get the biggest house-cleaning.

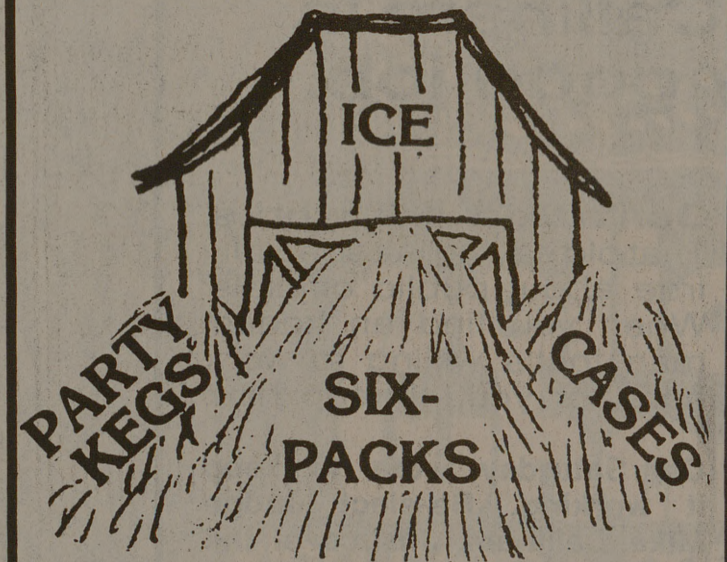

Showers in the men's dorm will be renovated, White said, and the rooms will be carpeted and painted.

Next summer, Hotard will be air-conditioned.

Corps-type dorms will have the shower windows bricked in. This isn't because of Peeping Toms, but because water condenses on the outside of the windows and runs down the side of the building, corroding the brick, White said.

Crocker dorm will be converted to accommodate handicapped students.
