

TAES holds convention

More than 1,000 Texas Agricultural Extension Service professionals will converge on the Texas A&M University campus to attend the 1980 State Extension Conference this week.

The theme of the five-day meet is "YOU" (You — Opportunity — Understanding), centering on "people concerns" and their solutions.

The Extension Service conducts informal public education programs in agriculture, home economics, community development and 4-H and youth.

The conference was scheduled to open this morning with an address by Dr. Daniel C. Pfannstiel, conference director.

Throughout the week, staff members will attend refresher courses — ranging from courses on energy, urban programming and the family, to courses on consumers, commodity market information and life management.

Special exhibits for the conference will take an in-depth look at the energy picture.

A methanol car exhibit will be provided by Texas A&M University's chemical engineering department.

Other exhibits deal with gasohol, clothing for energy conservation, shale oil, energy concerns in agriculture, driving for energy conservation, magnetic fusion and energy conservation alternatives for the home.

The exhibits will be on display in the Rudder Mall area during the conference.

Policeman dies in South African riot

United Press International
JOHANNESBURG, South Africa — A white demonstrator stabbed a policeman to death in Capetown early Monday in a melee in which baton-wielding police fired tear gas to break up protests on the anniversary of the 1976 Soweto race riots — the bloodiest in the nation's history.

Students had called for a nationwide strike by black workers to remember the more than 600 victims of the Soweto riots and vowed to go on with demonstrations despite a government ban on meetings of more than 10 people for the rest of June.

Johannesburg police, who reported the policeman killed in Capetown, said the stay-away was heavy in the Capetown area but less effective in Durban and Johannesburg.

A police spokesman said the police tried to keep a low profile in the face of the demonstrations, but would not tolerate any officers being killed.

On Sunday, riot police fired tear gas and charged into the crowds with batons to break up a peaceful prayer meeting of 300 students in the parking lot of Soweto's largest church, Regina Mundi. Several people were arrested.

Police also fired tear gas canisters into a crowd of foreign journalists and television camera crews who watched the meeting.

The government Friday vowed it would not tolerate anarchy in connection with the June 16 anniversary of Soweto. Police Minister Louis Le Grange said his men would move in on June 16 or any other day to protect the state's security.

But students vowed to go ahead with memorial services in defiance of the emergency government ban, and police braced themselves for confrontations with blacks, mulattos and Indians.

Pamphlets circulated throughout black townships in the country's urban centers ordered black workers to stay home.

"All the workers should observe and keep this day — June 16 — revered," one pamphlet said. "Don't sacrifice your life for a day's pay. No one is going to work on Monday June 16 or else."

"Be warned. Warn your neighbor. Do not test the people's patience for it is not endless."

Yarbrough free to go if he leaves cash bond

United Press International
AUSTIN — District Attorney Ronald Earle said Monday he will fight any move to allow Don Yarbrough, former State Supreme Court justice convicted of perjury, to leave the country unless the ex-judge puts up a cash bond guaranteeing he will serve a prison sentence.

Yarbrough is seeking permission to go to the Bahamas, where he said he hopes to study medicine while his case is appealed.

"He can go to witch doctor school as far as I'm concerned as long as it doesn't cost the taxpayers anything to extradite him if he decided to skip out," Earle said.

Yarbrough's appeal is expected to be heard by the Texas Court of Criminal Appeals this fall.

After his conviction in January 1978, Yarbrough was permitted to remain free on a $5,000 personal recognizance bond. The personal bond, however, does not require a defendant to actually put up any money.

"Somebody needs to find out how much it costs to extradite a defendant," Earle said. "We would want him to put up an amount that would cover the costs of extradition in case he runs."

Yarbrough's lawyer, former Attorney General Waggoner Carr, announced earlier this month the former justice wants to study medicine in the Caribbean in an attempt "to get the threads of his life together."

Under terms of his conviction he must have the permission of District Judge Mace B. Thurman to leave the country. The judge customarily consults the local district attorney on such matters.

Yarbrough was found guilty of lying to the Travis County grand jury about meeting with a business associate at an Austin motel to forge a car title and discuss a plot to murder a business foe.

Yarbrough was elected to the state's highest court in a 1976 surprise upset. A relative unknown, Yarbrough's victory was generally credited to the similarity of his name to that of Don Yarbrough, another Houston attorney who twice ran for governor.
