Lenny Bruce lives in work of actor

The work of the late social satirist Lenny Bruce will be relived this weekend in College Station.

When Bruce died in 1966, The Washington Post said in an editorial:
"Lenny Bruce believed in free speech with a passion that was often masked by the jokes he told. He was a social satirist; one of the boldest and the best."

"Lenny Bruce — For Adults Only," featuring William Weldon, will be presented at the Backstage Coffee House on June 28 and 29.

The Texas Actors Theater is sponsoring the show, which takes the form of a night club act and focuses on Bruce's work, unlike the Broadway show and film Lenny which focused on his life.

Weldon has arranged the show from Bruce's best night club material, and his autobiography, How to Get Dirty and Influence People.

Weldon, a director of TAT who recently performed in Richard III, The Duck Variations and Line, has been performing Bruce's material for more than a decade.

There will be two completely different shows at 8:30 and 11 p.m.
Admission will be charged for both shows.

Sponsors at Backstage, which located in the Northgate Shopping Center, said it should be noted that some people might find the language and/or subject matter of the show offensive.

McManus says trial was unfair

HOUSTON — Convicted killer Vernon McManus says his delinquent attorney suggested his 1977 pre-escape as a way to generate public and force a judge to move the trial to another city.

McManus made the claim Tuesday day on the witness stand to support charges he was denied proper legal counsel in the murder case because his lawyer, Don Smith, was having an affair with his wife.

"He (Smith) said we couldn't get a fair trial and if I did jump bond I could come back, the judge would give me a change of venue," McManus said.

Asked by his present attorney Smith suggested the flight to avoid prosecution, McManus answered "No, just to create other publicity we could get a change of venue."

McManus fled the state the before he was to go on trial on charges of killing a Baytown contractor for insurance money. He was apprehended six days later in a Tidala motel. The action did not State District Judge I.D. McManis to move the trial.

McManus claims Smith's alleged affair with his wife during the trial and subsequent appeals represent a conflict of interest. Smith disputed such an affair, but he and McManus' former wife, Regina, were married in 1979.

Earlier this week, another lawyer who helped in the defense case, a years ago testified Smith, a Baytown lawyer, knew of McManus' escape plans before police found McManus' blood-spattered car the day the defendant skipped town.
