Astros lose ground, 2-0; Rangers beat Milwaukee

HOUSTON — Pete Vuckovich, returning to the mound following a two-week rest, pitched an eight-hitter Sunday and also singled home a run to lead the St. Louis Cardinals to a 2-0 victory over the Houston Astros.

Meanwhile, the Texas Rangers rode the arm of Doc Medich to a 7-2 win over the Milwaukee Brewers in Milwaukee.

The victory gave St. Louis a split of the four-game series and dropped the second-place Astros two games behind the first place Los Angeles Dodgers in the National League West. The two teams will begin a two-game series Tuesday night.

Ted Simmons' two-out run-scoring single in the first inning staked the Cardinals to a 1-0 lead and Vuckovich singled home a run in the second to tag Ken Forsch with his 12th loss in 22 decisions.

Vuckovich worked his way out of two, two-out jams by getting Cesar Cedeño to ground out both times.

Vuckovich, 10-9, struck out six and walked one in notching his third shutout and seventh complete game.

The loss was the Astros seventh in their last 24 games while the Dodgers have won 17 of their last 20 games.

Mike Richardt singled three times and drove in three runs and Doc Medich posted his 100th major-league victory Sunday in leading the Texas Rangers to a 7-2 victory over the Milwaukee Brewers.

Texas took a 2-1 lead in the second after loading the bases with two outs. Jim Sundberg doubled before starter Bob McClure, 2-7, hit Pepe Frias with a pitch and walked Bud Harrelson. Richardt followed with a two-run single.

The Rangers made it 5-1 in the third on a run-scoring double by Richie Zisk and RBI singles by John Ellis and Sundberg. Richardt singled home another Texas run in the fifth and Frias' third single of the game delivered the Rangers' last run in the sixth.

Medich boosted his record to 12-9 by scattering 13 hits, including four singles by Paul Molitor, over 8 1/2 innings. Medich struck out five and walked none before being replaced by John Johnson, who came in the ninth to get the final out.

Field testing bothers some A&M students

If you live on campus and your studying was interrupted by strains of the Carpenters or Willie Nelson this weekend, don't blame it on your neighbor's blaring stereo — it was the new sound system in Kyle Field being tested.

Technicians from the Rudder Theater Complex are presently testing the new system which is set up in the Kyle Field scoreboard. They tested this weekend because the football team was out of town and they can't test while the team practices.

The loud music caused several students to call the University police and complain.

One of the technicians said despite the complaints, nothing can be done since the system must be tested.

The system will be tested again next weekend.
