A&M finishes 2nd in golf

Texas A&M University Tuesday finished second in the Fall Southwest Conference Golf tournament, 23 strokes behind the winning University of Houston team which compiled an 878 stroke total.

The top Aggie finishers were the two-man team of freshmen Ronnie Byrd and Jackie Lee, who finished fourth in the individual play, posting a 299 total. University of Houston golf teams took the top two individual places. Rice finished third in both the individual and team scores at the meet, which was played at the Columbia Lakes Country Club in Houston.

Georgia, Ags ride victories

By Kurt Allen

Before the season began last weekend, the Georgia Bulldogs and themselves in much the same position as the Texas A&M Aggies. There was a lack of depth despite a number of returning starters.

But Georgia Head Coach Vince Dooley may have partially solved that problem thanks to the 15th-ranked Bulldogs' opening 16-15 win over Tennessee.

Tailback had been one of the most important positions lacking depth, and heralded freshman Herschel Walker's performance in the Tennessee game has put a new light on the situation.

Walker was brilliant in the second half against the Volunteers, plowing way to two touchdowns to erase a 5-0 deficit before 95,288 fans in Tennessee's Neyland Stadium, the largest football crowd in the South's history.

Later, he told writers he had been afraid he'd never get into the game because of the play of the other two tailbacks. Once touted as the nation's top high school football player, Walker said he knew he would have to do something spectacular if he got to the field.

In his 17th year as Georgia men's coach, Dooley still has 18 starters back from last year's 6-5 squad which, oddly enough, was in the Southeastern Conference race until the final game of the year.

However, despite the play of Walker, offensive depth continues to be a problem for the Bulldogs. Georgia, which runs a basic "I" formation similar to that of the Aggies, has only one experienced quarterback in senior Buck Buel.

At 6-1, 188, Buel is a sprint-out passer. After suffering a broken ankle last year's Auburn game, Buel is once again in top form. But the Bulldogs can scarcely afford an injury to him.

The receivers he'll throw to are seasoned veterans as are the line-backers. However, there are only sophomore and freshmen squadmen to back up the starters. It's not the kind of situation that leaves a coach comfortable on the sideline.

Defensively, the Bulldogs seem to be in better shape, especially at the tackle and secondary positions. Senior all-conference cornerback Scott Woerner (6-0, 195) is the anchor of the split-60 defense, which features an eight-man line most of the time.

The linebacker corps, like much of the squad, is heavy on experience but short on speed and mobility. Because they lack the necessary speed, Dooley calls his linebackers a bunch of "Old Junkyard Dogs," despite the fact these players are smart, heavy hitters.

Perhaps Georgia's brightest spot is the return of all-conference and all-America senior kicker Rex Robinson. He currently holds the Southeast Conference records for most career field goals (40) and most consecutive extra points (65).

Thus, the game in Sanford Stadium (59,000 capacity) shapes up as a battle of two fine defensive teams.

On paper, the edge might very well go to 19th-ranked Texas A&M because of the Aggies' potentially explosive offense.

But Georgia still has the always important home-field advantage. That basically even the score.

Now in his 17th year, Dooley has three SEC titles to his credit and owns an overall record of 119-56-6. In addition, his teams have participated in 11 bowl games and Dooley has been SEC Coach-of-the-Year five times (1964, '66, '68, '76 and '78.)

The Aggies' Tom Wilson meanwhile, has one of the greatest offensive minds in the country. He owned the rare distinction of calling his own plays as an all-Southwest Conference quarterback for Texas Tech in 1965.

Since taking over the Aggie helm, Wilson has compiled an 11-7 mark.

It should be an interesting matchup between a sly veteran head coach who's seen it all and an exciting, bold youngster who routinely takes risks and makes them work.

Kickoff for the inter-conference game is set for 12:30 p.m. central daylight time.

Announcing Texas Instruments Author Incentive Program... win up to $3,000.

Texas Instruments is looking for unique home computer programs. If you have some, we can help you turn them into profit makers. To begin with--you could win up to $3,000. You'll still own the programs...we may help you sell them.

One of the most exciting things about the home computer revolution is discovering the many ways a computer can be used.

If you've been working with small computers for a while, chances are you've developed some innovative application programs. This is your chance to put them to work—for a profit.

Texas Instruments is looking for quality programs. We've created an Author Incentive Program to make it worth your while. The award for the top program will be $3,000. And there are five $1,000 awards, plus twenty $500 awards. All winners will be recognized with national publicity. Even if you don't receive one of these monetary awards, we may see enough market potential for your program to help you develop it and sell it.

We want programs that offer real utility and lasting value. Programs that are self-teaching, that communicate on human terms. After all, the TI Home Computer was designed to be the first home computer the whole family can use.

TI is interested in education, personal finance and technical or managerial programs for professionals. Home management programs, hobby and simulation programs. We prefer that your submissions exclude entertainment packages.

Your entry can be a program you've created for use on the TI-99/4 or other microcomputers—in any high-level language, from Pascal and BASIC to FORTRAN or COBOL—or even assembly language. All the way up to 48K RAM.

Keep in mind that programs for the TI Home Computer can incorporate high-quality color graphics, music and sound effects, and TI's remarkably-human synthesized speech.

To submit an entry, call the toll-free number below. We'll send you an entry submission form plus full details. Please don't send anything until you receive and fill out this entry form.

Programs must be in by November 15, 1980—so get your entry form soon.

For an entry form, call 1-800-858-4565.
Call between 8 a.m.-4:30 p.m. CDT, Mon-Fri. In Texas call 1-800-692-4279.
