Kemp-Roth 'inflationary'

Carter slams Reagan tax cut

United Press International
PERTH AMBOY, N.J. — President Carter charged Tuesday that Ronald Reagan's proposal for an election year tax cut would mean massive tax breaks for the wealthy and massive inflation for workers.

the new Raritan River Steel Co. plant in blue-collar Perth Amboy.

"One of the most important choices before the American people this fall is how we meet the economic challenges of the 1980s," Carter said. "The contrasts between the Democratic proposal and the Republican Kemp-Roth plan are stark."

Carter did not mention Reagan by name, but the Kemp-Roth plan for a 30 percent tax cut has been pushed by the Republican nominee.

Sen. William Roth, R-Del., one of the sponsors, Monday accused the administration of making "grossly inaccurate and misleading statements" about the impact of the GOP tax proposal. At a news conference, Roth said he sent a letter to Carter asking the administration to stop "false and deceptive" assessments of his plan.

"What we need is a carefully designed, well-targeted and workable revitalization package that will increase investment, offset Social Security tax increases, help those parts of our country that need it most, and hold down inflation," said Carter. "That is exactly what the Democratic plan will do."

"What we do not need is an election year tax cut that will mean massive tax breaks for the wealthy and massive increases in inflation to working people," he added. "That is exactly what Kemp-Roth will do."

Carter is backing a tax cut next year, and has said he will veto any reduction this year.

His trip to this blue-collar, heavily Democratic city off the southern edge of Staten Island is his only campaign travel of the week.

He came to woo votes and to spotlight a new steel mill, described by Carter as "the most advanced in the country and equal to those anywhere in the world." The plant will provide 450 jobs for the community, and was built with the assistance of loan guarantees from the federal government and New Jersey.

"I came here today especially because I want you to know that you are part of something very important and special taking place in America — the rebuilding of our country's industrial base," he told the gathering.

"I know there are some cynics who say that America is over the hill, on the decline — that our productivity, our ingenuity, our quality of life are all headed downhill," he said.

Reagan belittles Carter economics

United Press International
CHICAGO — Ronald Reagan denounced the administration's economic renewal plan as "a crazy quilt of obvious election year promises" designed to cover President Carter's inadequacy as a leader.

Tuesday, his second day of a campaign through several blue-collar cities, Reagan delivered his economic proposal to the International Business Council.

Reagan's trip included a bitter attack on Carter at Kokomo, Ind., where the jobless rate is 19.8 percent.

A noon-time rally drew about 6,000 people, who responded enthusiastically to his attacks against the president.

Noting he was criticized recently for calling the economic situation a "depression," Reagan challenged Carter to "go to the unemployment lines and lecture those workers who've been betrayed on what is the proper definition for their widespread economic misery."

"They don't need defining," Reagan said. "They need action."

The former California governor ridiculed Carter for the timing of his latest plan to deal with the economy.

"With two months to go until the election, he rides to the rescue with a crazy quilt of obvious election year promises," Reagan said to applause.

The very responsive crowd was subdued compared to the several thousand who lined West Lithuanian Plaza Court on Chicago's West Side.

"I love Lithuanians," said a poster Reagan held aloft as he marched down the street with Illinois Gov. James Thompson.

Later, Reagan met with local Polish-American leaders and capped his day by dining with Gerald Ford. The former president has promised to campaign on 11 separate dates for Reagan this fall.

Art League presents class on structure perspective

John Peter, an assistant professor in the Department of Environmental Design, will present a lesson on perspective for local artists at 7:30 p.m. Thursday at the Brazos Center.

It is being sponsored by the Brazos Valley Art League and is free of charge.

Peter, who holds a bachelor's degree in architecture from Oklahoma State University and a master's from the University of Oklahoma, does his artwork in watercolor. However, the Art League said the lesson will be equally applicable to artists who do not use watercolor.
