Matthew Horowitz, a spokesman for the Atlantic Life Community peace coalition, called the incident part of a so-called "Swords to Plowshares" protest and said the eight had hoped to dismantle the weapons systems in the facility.

"We feel their (GE's) contract to build the Mark 12A is making nuc-lear war more possible," Horowitz

Robert Smith, 30, of Media, Pa., a member of one of the eight groups associated with ALC, said the coalition had been "focusing on General Electric's production of the Mark 12A for the last two years."

This kind of technology has no right to exist and the arms race must stop," Smith said. "To embody that statement, people did some damage to components of the re-entry vehi-cles and poured blood on drafting

A hearing for the eight suspects was set for next Monday in Upper Merion District Court.

Jailed along with the Berrigans on similar charges were Dean Hammer, 28, Connecticut; the Rev. Carl Kabat, 47, Baltimore; Elmer Maas, New York; Sister Anne Montgom-ery, New York; Molly Rush, Pitt-sburgh, and John Schuchardt, 37, Philip Berrigan, a Josephite priest who was excommunicated from the Roman Catholic Church for marrying a former nun, was acquitted in 1972 Harrisburg trial with six others on charges they engaged in a 1970 plot to kidnap Henry Kissinger and blow up Washington, D.C., heating tunnels.

Daniel Berrigan, a Jesuit priest who left the church, once went underground for four months to elude a federal prison term for destroying draft records. He was subsequently caught, jailed and paroled in February, 1972.

Bradley to replace Rather next spring

United Press International NEW YORK — Ed Bradley officially has been given the job that's been his on the rumor mill for months, replacing Dan Rather on "60 Minutes" when Rather takes Walter Cronkite's job.

No definite date has been set, but it will be sometime next spring, probably in March.

'No one really knows for sure when I'll start working and doing actual pieces for '60 Minutes," Bradley said after accepting congratulations on his new post.
"There's been no timetable set up.

It all starts with Walter and when he will step down. The general feeling is that Dan will be gone from the show

Bradley, whose mother and father both have been ill, has been too distracted to make definite plans.

"I've filed away a couple of things, good story ideas — which I won't mention now because I'm not going to start working tomorrow and I wouldn't want someone else to do

Bradley's career with CBS News began in Saigon in 1972. He was reassigned to Washington in June 1974, served as CBS News White House correspondent from November 1976 through September 1978, when he was named a principal correspondent for CBS Reports.

He also anchors the CBS Sunday Night New, and doesn't know if he will continue in the job after he begins work on "60 Minutes."

Bradley enjoys the traveling that will be part of his new job and likes the idea of "doing a little bit of every-

"I'm not coming onto '60 Minutes' as a black specialist," he said in answer to a question, but added, "I do have a different perspective because I happen to be black."
