Reveille ready for Penn State

Reveille IV is "a dog for all seasons," but the season in which she plays a star role is the fall — foot-

The 5-year-old collie appears at all Texas A&M University football games, home and away, flies by private jet, and has a guardian and tailored clothes — originals —specially designed by her guardians' parents.

But, Reveille just isn't any star. She's the American collie mascot of the Texas Aggies.

Her guardian and constant campanion, Greg Zachary, said Reveille returned from Georgia undaunted by her co-stars performance, and is ready for her first home appearance of the year.

Reveille receives a new guar-dian each year. The honor and official title of mascot corporal is ber of Company E-2 in the Texas A&M corps of cadets. The mascot corporal is chosen at the end of the spring semester and takes Reveille home with him for the summer, allowing her time to adjust to her new master.

Texas A&M has a special fund of $350 established each year for her dining and health needs.

She is loved by her fans, some of whom live in Spence and Briggs dormitories. Those dorms raised $118 for the expense of her plane trip to Georgia.

Her round-trip fare was approximately $500, and the Association of Former Students contributed the difference.

Reveille has taken a commercial jet, but found the accommodations unbearable

'She didn't like that, so never again," Zachary said

Ski club offers more

An icy wind is biting though your last layer of wool sweatering and a wet slush is creeping into your boots, but you don't care. When you see that mountain spreading out before you, when you feel it rushing beneath your skis, you know only the excitement of tackling the slope with as much speed and skill as you can

Sound good? It does to a lot of Ags — this year's Ski Club trip to Breck-enridge already has a waiting list for airplane reservations. But don't despair - the club is also chartering buses to the resort with space for 86 people. After the buses fill up, club president Trish Hintzel said studens can carpool to Denver and meet the rest of the group at the airport and still enjoy discounts on the lodgings and lift tickets. Hintzel said the cost of the trip this year, $365 with airfare, is only a little

"We are not making a profit — in fact, if we do this year, it will be the first time" Hintzel said.

The price with bus fare is $315 and Hintzel said it is often the best way to go. "You get to know more poeple that way," Hintzel said. The bus trip is 22 hours straight through, she said, "except for emergency stops when evereybody gets too crazy to

The club has many advantages over private skiers. "For one thing," Hintzel said, "since we start so early making arrangements, we can reserve the best places." The club has chosen Pine Ridge condominiums, where "you can ski right down to it."

The savings are substantial when a large group goes together, said Hint-zel. The condominiums alone would be $158 per person regularly. Equpiment rental is $6.50 per day, instead of a regular $8 to $10.

Security said low for AF spy satellites

United Press International HOUSTON — A military maga-zine warns that Johnson Space Center security is too lax for the planned space-shuttle launch of spy satellites, but a spokesman said the civilian officials at JSC had received no official Pentagon complaints.

The first defense satellite is scheduled to be carried aloft by a space shuttle in April 1983, with initial control of the payload at JSC to be taken over by the Air Force center at Sunnyvale, Calif. The Air Force currently was Titter III. rently uses Titan III missiles for launch with full control at Sunny-

"If we are falling short of their security requirements, they sure need to let us know," said a JSC spokesman, who added that JSC officials have read the article but
