THE NORFOLK NAVAL SHIPYARD

was founded nine years before the birth of our nation. Founded at the same time was a tradition of excellence in the shipbuilding-repair industry which remains today! This tradition has spanned events such as the construction of the Civil War ironclad, Merrimac in 1861-62, right up to the repair and maintenance of today's modern nuclear powered aircraft carriers and submarines. We are no longer building ships but we remain unequalled in our ability to repair any vessel of today's U. S. Navy, on or beneath the seas.

The shipyard of the 80's is a modern, dynamic industrial marine repair facility offering "hands-on" experience to today's graduating engineer. Men and women who enjoy being challenged by the most sophisticated technology available in industry. Engineers who expect to move up in the organization as a result of their efforts. Engineers who expect their salaries to increase along with their responsibilities.

Give blood — get a balloon

Matt McClung, a freshman from Lancaster, helps blood donors recover by giving them a balloon. The balloons promote the Aggie Blood Drive, sponsored by Alpha Phi Omega. Blood can be donated in room 212 of the Meador Student Center, or in bloodmobiles outside the Commons and Sbis through the end of the week.

Additional state gas tax rejected

United Press International AUSTIN — A study by top state officials has determined there should be no hike in Texas' gasoline tax or the severance tax on oil during the 1981 legislative session.

Both Gov. Bill Clements and Gov. Bill Hobby have suggested the possibility of revising the tax rates to the market for products, rather than to the However, Clements said such measures were no longer considered.

"After extensive discussion," Lieutenant Governor Bill House Speaker Bill Clay has been decided that it would be appropriate to increase these taxes," Clements said.

He said the windfall passed by Congress will be kept in Texas for the next 10 years.

"All options were explored by a method by which these funds be kept in Texas (through tax adjustments deductible from Texas Act an acceptable and reasonable ram could not be finalized," Clements said.

He said rising gasoline prices has resulted in declining user tax revenues for the system.
