Aggies look for 1st state title Tournament begins today

By RICHARD OLIVER
Sports Editor

For the A&M women's softball team, this weekend will either nullify its most successful fall ever, or make it the most memorable in its history.

The Aggies field perhaps the most consistent team ever to bless the M campus, finishing third in the last spring in a very competitive field at the national tournament in Norman, Okla.

This year, A&M is bigger and better than ever, with essentially the same team that missed a national title by two runs last year.

Had been in Amarillo for the State Championships, against such teams as Texas Women's University, University of Texas-Arlington, and the Aggies, who have compiled a 23-1 record thus far this fall, mentally primed.

Headed by All-America pitcher candidate Lori Stoll, the team has blanketed opponents 13 times. Stoll has gathered a 13-0 mark with 105 strikeouts in 91 innings while giving up a scant four runs for an ERA of 0.30.

Fellow hurler Shan McDonald is right behind her with a 10-1 season record with 50 strikeouts in 87 innings while compiling a 0.45 ERA.

On offense, the Ags are paced by four hitters over .300: Maris Resendez at .350, Rhonda Reese at .324, Karen Guerrero at .319 and Melody Pritchard at .304. Pritchard and Reese pace the teams in RBIs with 17 each. On the base paths, Carrie Austgen with nine steals leads the team while Rose Ruffino and Guerrero have eight each. The team has set a school record with 48 thefts so far.

In addition, Pritchard has slammed two home runs. On defense, the Aggies have a .961 fielding mark.

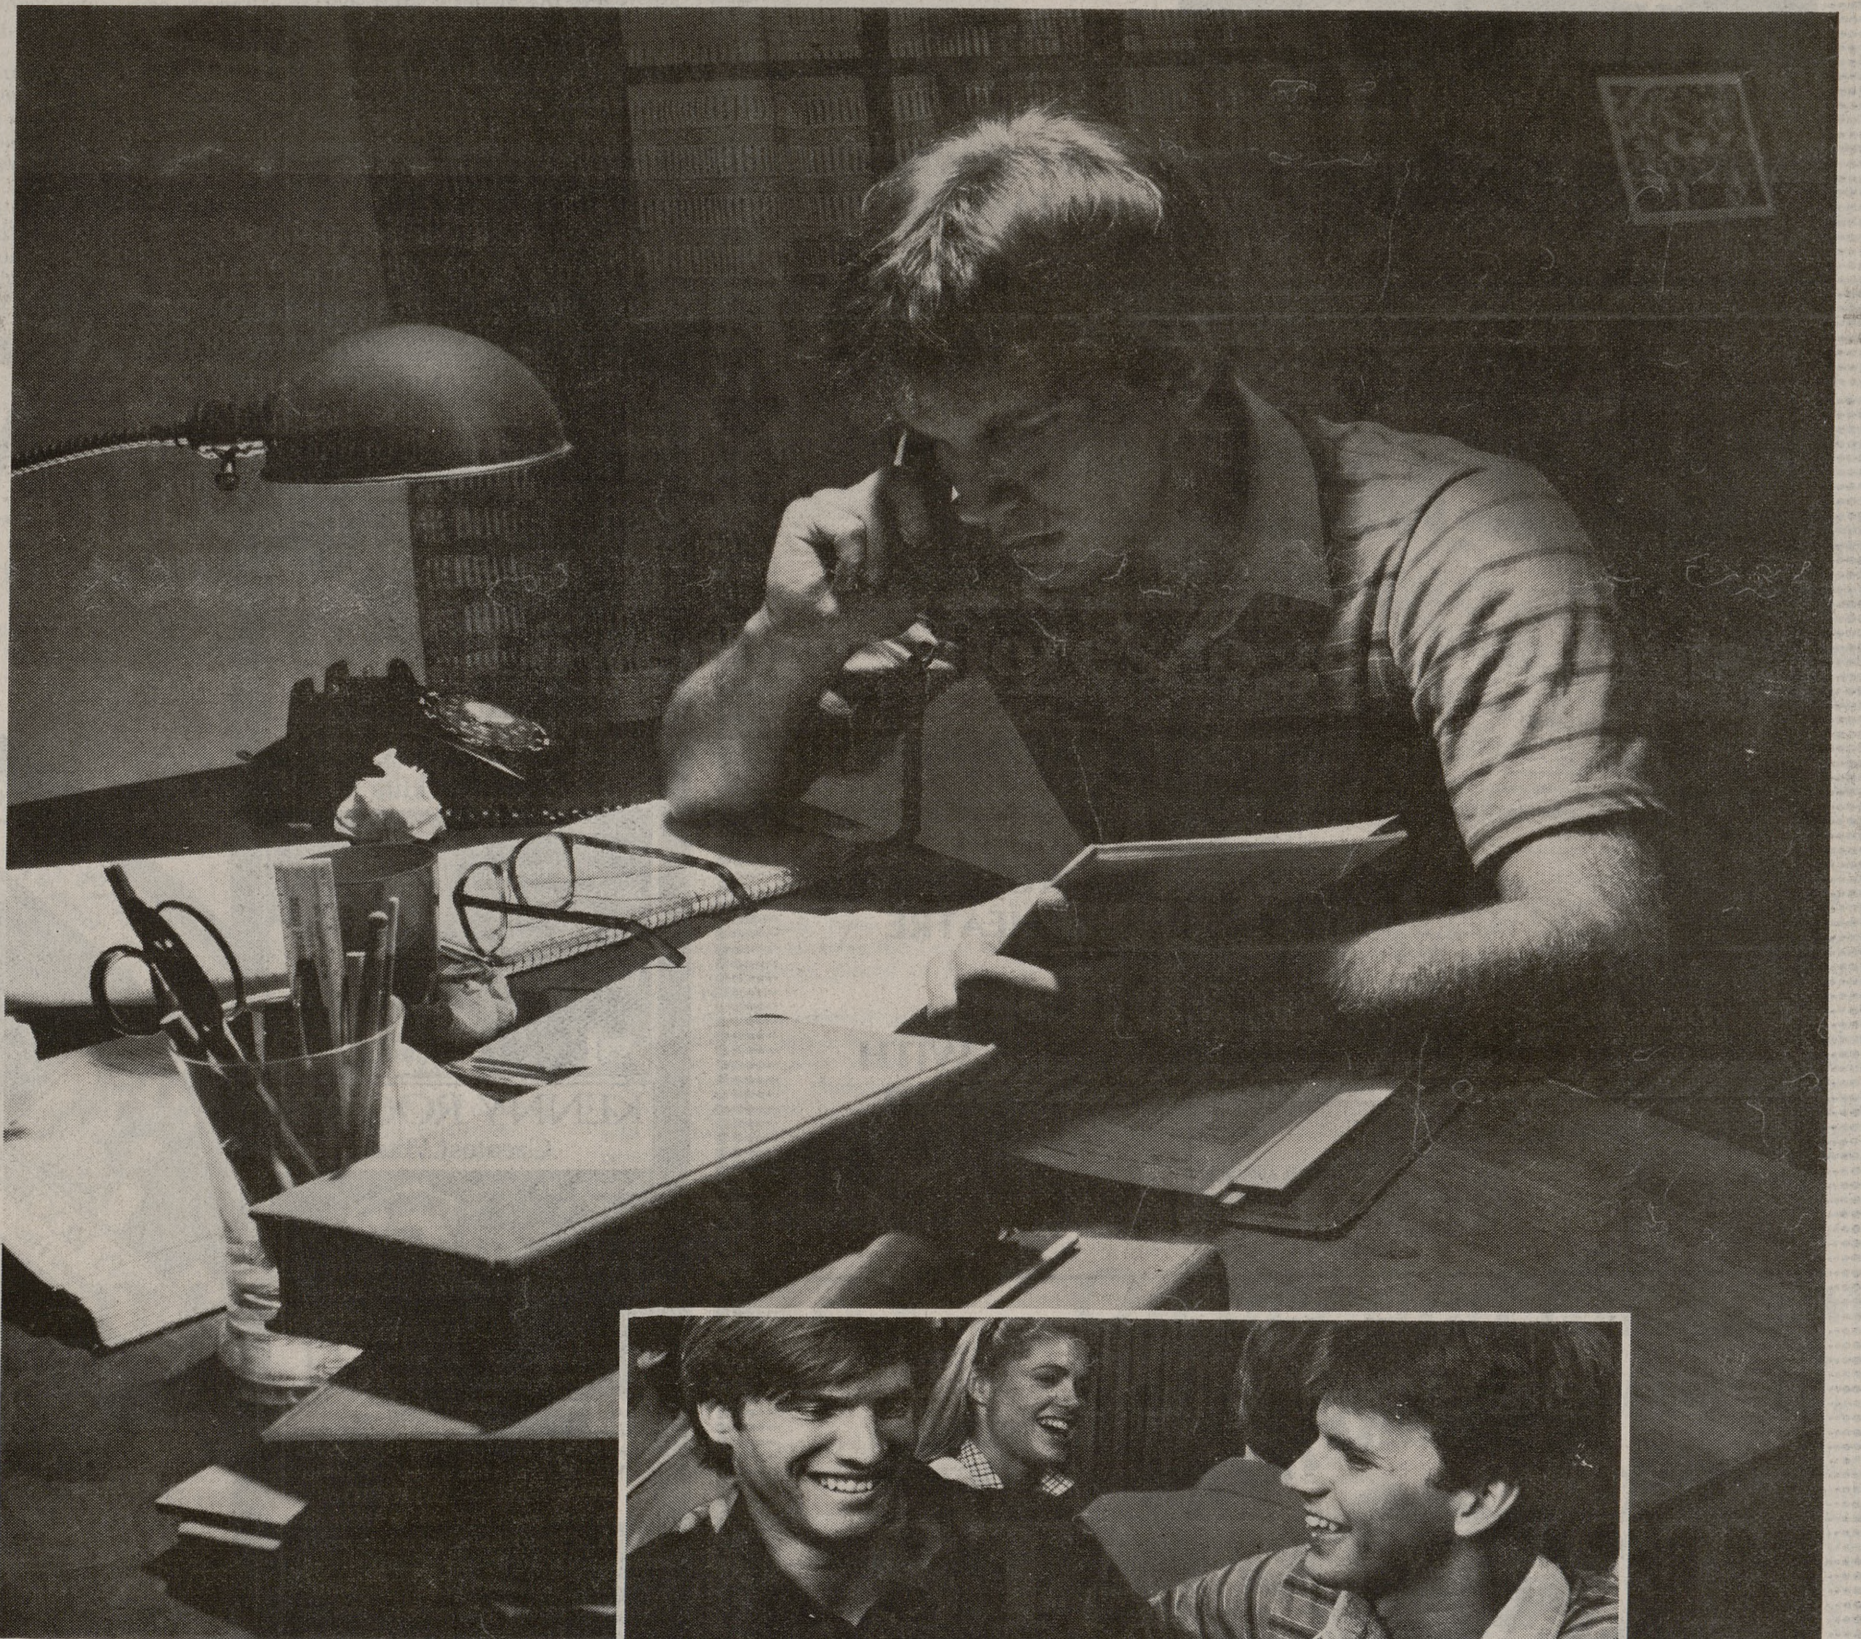

The awesome Aggies have drawn a first round bye in the tournament, which begins this morning, and will play the winner of Stephen F. Austin-Texas Tech at 2:30 p.m.

Galloway will field the same lineup player for player that finished third in the nationals last year, with the exception of Patti Holthaus in right field.

Galloway said Thursday he sees UT-A and TWU as the co-favorites for the state title along with A&M.

When you need some notes at 3:00 a.m., you find out who your friends are.

You left the notes for chapter 6 in the library. A sure sign that tomorrow's test will be heavy with questions from chapter 6. Someone you know is about to get a phone call. He's not going to like it, but he's going to come through. When this is over, do something special for him. Tonight, let it be Löwenbräu.

Men's volleyball underway at 7:30

The Texas A&M University men's volleyball club will begin its season tonight with perhaps its best game of the year.

The 1979-80 regional champs will play last year's runner-up Texas Tech in G. Rollie White Coliseum at 7:30 p.m. and more than just exciting volleyball action awaits the fans.

At halftime of the game, fans may participate in a serving contest. The winners will serve at five laundry sets which will be set up on the east side of the court in a cross formation, three parallel to the net and perpendicular.

Over $500 worth of prizes will be given away, and over 35 individual players will walk home happier. There will be seven prizes in that category worth $25 each.

Only spectators are eligible for the contest. The A&M team is made up of students, graduates and faculty. There will actually be three matches played between A&M and Texas: the two best teams, a graduates-only game and a faculty-only game.

The main matchup, however, will pit the Aggies against a Longhorn team which they beat out last year for the regional title in the tournament held in Austin last spring.

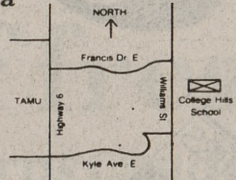

Starting for A&M tonight will be Dave Schakel and Mark Piwonka, middle blockers; John Kelley and Rick Fiske, setting positions; and Tim Friedlander and John Thornton, spiking.

Schakel said Thursday although the team has not tried for varsity status at A&M, several schools across the state are gradually being granted varsity status. He added the Aggies will someday try to get varsity status when the state has more recognized teams.

Admission fee for the event will be $1, with children 12-or-under getting in free.
