Safe cigarettes 'no help'

United Press International
CAMBRIDGE, Mass. — Quitting smoking cold turkey is better than switching to so-called "safe" low tar and low nicotine smokes, says the Harvard Medical School Health Letter. Smokers need to take more puffs on them to get the amount of nicotine their bodies crave, the newsletter adds. The health letter says the so-called "safe" cigarettes are hooking a whole new generation of adolescent girls, who are sensitive to high nicotine levels in older, stronger brands.
