Ag women win, raise record to 4-0

The A&M women's soccer team knocked off Rice Sunday 5-0 to raise its season record to 4-0. Carol Sullivan led the Aggies with two goals, and teammates Sue Tesar, Carol Smith and Carol Gittinger padded the score with one goal each. "We took 18 people up there to play," said Head Coach Rob Borgeson. "They didn't play quite as good as they could. It seems Texas A&M plays just as good as they have to." Sullivan's two goals upped her fall total to 10. Earlier this year, the senior scored five goals in a 9-0 win over Trinity, and three in a 4-3 victory over Stephen F. Austin. The Aggies travel to Austin Saturday to take on Texas. Sunday, the team makes its way to Waco for a match against Baylor. "We've started out a little stronger this year than we have in the past," said Borgeson. Texas A&M has scored 18 goals in its four games.

Few and far between

The north end of Kyle Field is bare as only 52,449 fans show up for the Rice-Texas A&M game Saturday. The Aggies lost to Rice, 10-6, dropping their season record to 2-5. Kyle Field, after a two-year face lift, now seats 70,016. The Ags' next home game will be against TCU on Nov. 22.

Bands save day for TAMU fans

By KURT ALLEN

If the worth of an Aggie home football game ticket were judged solely by the team's performance, Texas A&M fans would certainly have a valid reason to cry for a refund. Usually teams do better at home than on the road, but the Aggies have been equally disappointing (1-3 at home and 1-2 on the road) in both places. Thank goodness there's more to a game than four quarters of uninspired play by Texas A&M. I dare say halftimes have been the only redeeming factor at Kyle Field in 1980. This was especially true of the Analysis

Owl-Aggie contest, where the halftime by itself proved to be worth the price of admission.

Halftime was more than a pleasant, forgettable experience Saturday. Both the Fightin' Texas Aggie Band and the Marching Owl Band, better known as the MOB, put on the best shows seen around here in some time.

For the MOB, it was history in the making, since it had not journeyed to College Station since 1972. The reason was an infamous incident at Rice Stadium in 1973.

What happened there was an on-the-field halftime satire of the Aggie Band by the MOB. First it played an out-of-tune version of the Aggie Hymn and then it formed an on-step block-T.

Needless to say, the Corp. Cadets had to be restrained from storming the field. After the game the MOB was surrounded under south stands for two hours by police and stadium workers.

But Saturday was a different day for many of us. It helped a little of the fun back into watching football game. It's too bad the team wasn't able to live up to that level of quality.

Volleyball team loses four of five matches

By MIKE BURRICHTER
Sports Editor
The Texas A&M women's volleyball team had a rough weekend, losing four of five matches in Houston, after going 4-1 the preceding week.

The Aggies met up with three of this state's better teams this weekend, and though head coach Terry Condon said she's disappointed in her team's performance, she's fortunate to have come away with a third place finish.

This weekend, on the eve of their California trip, the Aggie women played what one team member called sluggish volleyball at Houston's Melcher gymnasium, and if it wasn't for a gutsy comeback in their last game against Lamar, would have left the place without a victory.

Friday night, the Cards averaged a 12-15, 15-11, 17-15 over Saturday, the Aggies could do nothing right against tournament runner Houston and second place Arlington, taking a one-sided loss to the Cougars while absorbing such losses to UT-A. Finally, the team came from a game down to defeat Lamar, 8-15, 15-9, 15-5.

Today the Aggies travel to west coast where they'll play a three day tournament at UC Thursday. There, Condon says, the team will participate in a tournament loaded with almost as much talent as the national championship tournament in December. Condon of the California week should provide ample preparation for the state tournament held here in two weeks.
