OFFICIAL NOTICE

Fennan D. Jennings, director of the Texas A&M University Sea Grant College Program, has been named president-elect of the Sea Grant Association, a 50-member association made up of colleges and universities with Sea Grant programs and industrial firms and other associations with marine interests. Jennings, who has directed the Texas A&M Sea Grant program since March 1978, will serve as president-elect for one year, after which he will become president for a one-year term. Jennings was formerly head of the National Science Foundation's Office for the International Decade of Ocean Exploration in Washington, D.C. He has also served as acting director of the Division of Ocean Sciences and Technology Division, both within the National Science Foundation; as head oceanographer in the Geophysics Branch of the Office of Naval Research; and as senior engineer at Scripps Institution of Oceanography.

Dr. John E. Hutchison, former director of the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, has been named planning and development officer for the Texas A&M University System. Hutchison will assist Robert C. Cherry, assistant chancellor, in defining and interpreting System programs and needs and providing such information upon request to state and local officials. Hutchison retired four years ago after 33 years of service with the Texas A&M University System. His most recent positions were TAEX director and associate dean of the College of Agriculture.

Texas Agricultural Extension Service director Dr. Daniel C. Pfannstiel has been named to the Extension Committee on Organization and Policy (ECOP), a major national policy group of the Cooperative Extension Service. Pfannstiel was selected by Extension directors of the Southern Region of the United States to represent them for the next four years, and to plan and implement policies of the U.S. Department of Agriculture — Science and Education Administration agency. He previously served on the ECOP Legislative Subcommittee and the ECOP Task Force on International Affairs. He has been Texas A&M University System TAEX director since 1976.

Texas A&M University animal science major Robert W. Jones was one of 30 agricultural students across the country recently selected to receive an Alpha Zeta scholarship. The scholarships were granted by the National Alpha Zeta Foundation of America, Inc. Alpha Zeta is a professional fraternity in agriculture with chapters on 65 university campuses in the United States and Puerto Rico. Jones is from Gaviota, Calif.

John Olin (Jack) Teague has been named executive assistant to the vice president for business affairs at Texas A&M University. Vice President Howard E. Neal said Teague will assist in a variety of activities ranging from coordination of the university's auxiliary enterprises to a review and planning. Teague retired from the Air Force last month after a 20-year career which included assignments as a fighter pilot, squadron commander and, at time of retirement, executive in command of the Air Force Systems Command at Andrews AFB. He is the son of former U.S. Representative and Mrs. Olin (Tiger) Teague. He graduated from Texas A&M in 1959 with a degree in journalism.

J. Milton Nance, history professor at Texas A&M University for 38 years, has been honored with a lecture series established in his name by the university Department of History. The J. Milton Nance Lectures in Texas History will emphasize Texas and regional history. Nance was head of the history department from 1958 through 1973. He has received honors including election to Phi Beta Kappa, Phi Kappa Phi, Fellow of the Texas State Historical Association, Amoco Distinguished Faculty Award in Research and Publication and the establishment of Baylor University School of Law of two J. Milton Nance scholarships to be awarded annually.
