

GTE sets telephone charge

By JENIFFER AFFLERBACH

As of October 1, dormitory residents must pay $20 to establish long distance telephone service each school year, a General Telephone Company representative told the Residence Hall Association Tuesday night.

The cost, which applies each time service is established or reconnected, includes a $12 charge for processing the service order and an $8 line connection charge.

Students who had long distance service set up before October 1 will not be affected by the rate increase until next September, unless they change rooms, said Bill Erwin, regional manager for GTE in Bryan-College Station.

If a student changes rooms, he can save the $5 connection charge if it has already been paid for the room he moves into, but he still must pay the $12 charge, Erwin said.

In other business, RHA delegates voted 25 to 7 not to endorse a Student Senate bill which would allow the MSC Basement to sell beer on weekends.

A proposal to collect dorm room keys from students over the Christmas break, which raised some controversy at the last RHA meeting, will go into effect the spring semester of 1982 instead of next semester.

This gives dorm residents more warning of the change, RHA President Sherrie Balcar said.

Another issue that raised debate among delegates was the decision to require fifth-year seniors and graduate students to live off-campus beginning next fall to provide more on-campus housing for freshmen.

"Freshmen need to be on campus," said Nolen Mears, RHA Advisor. "The people most adapted and most adjusted to living off-campus would be the seniors."

Those opposing the decision said fifth-year seniors who will be in school for just one more semester will have difficulty getting a three-month lease off-campus.

Couple kills nude intruder

United Press International
CLEVELAND — A couple awakened early Sunday by a nude intruder say they shot and killed a man, who turned out to be a neighbor and friend, because he refused to leave their home.

Curtis D. Pope, 24, died at the home of Elijah Callahan, 67, and Lillian DeVese, 55, Callahan's common-law wife. Pope, shot six times in the legs and chest early Sunday, lived five houses down the street.

The couple said they did not recognize Pope when they shot him.

Ordeal not all bad: wives of hostages

United Press International
NEW YORK — The American hostages in Iran have now seen a year of captivity, but two of their wives say they've seen some good come of the confinement.

And the husband of a woman captured in Iran six months after the hostages were taken says he believes she will come home with them.

"I think that we, as a nation, have gained the most extraordinary mass unity in our history," said Louisa Kennedy, the wife of Moorehead Kennedy, Jr.

Barbara Rosen, the wife of press attache Barry Rosen, added that the ordeal has opened a "whole other world" filled with those who care.

"I feel so proud of the American people," she said.

Both women spoke Monday, in an interview with WHN radio to be aired Sunday, of their suffering and their hopes that the hostages will soon be released.

Tuesday marked the beginning of the second year of captivity for the hostages, taken Nov. 4, 1979, in an attack on the U.S. Embassy in Tehran.

Since that day, the relatives of the 52 captives have become "armored," Mrs. Kennedy said.

The families' incredulous attitude during the early days of imprisonment and, later, their see-sawing hopes for the hostages' release have been replaced by a weary and implacable realism, she said.

"We realized that the news was worse than the situation itself. We have become very armored now," Mrs. Kennedy added.

Like Mrs. Rosen and Mrs. Kennedy, John Dwyer continues to hope for the release of his spouse.

Dwyer said Monday in Amherst that he has "never doubted for a moment" that his wife Cynthia — a freelance journalist — will come home with the American hostages, despite State Department statements that other Americans being held in Iran will be treated separately.
