Bodies of 2 found by diver in river

United Press International
NORTH LITTLE ROCK, Ark. — A diver Tuesday found the bodies of a 4-month girl and her 18-month old sister floating in the frigid Arkansas River several hundred yards from where their father allegedly tossed them off a bridge in front of a horrified cab driver.
Little Rock police also said the diver, Sgt. John Lee, had found the billfold of David Allen Jackson, 20, the girls' father, in the river near where he found the bodies of Latoryja Jackson and her older sister, Lakisha.
Police said they now believe Jackson hurled himself into the river Sunday night after he took a cab to the middle of the Main Street bridge and tossed the girls into the cold water.
Divers and police with drag lines will continue to search the river for Jackson's body, a Little Rock police spokesman said.
"We're going under the assumption he's in the river even though we've issued murder warrants for him," said Pulaski County sheriff's spokesman Gene Stewart. "Since we found his billfold, we believe he jumped, too."
The girls' bodies were taken to the Pulaski County coroner's office, where their mother, Aline Colston, 19, was asked to identify them, the spokesman said.
Lee found the bodies of the two children floating under a railroad bridge next to the river bank on the Little Rock side.
