Camp use not limited to KKK

United Press International
DALLAS — Paramilitary camps used by Ku Klux Klansmen, Mormons, Brown Berets and others are plentiful in Texas, say men who have worked at the camps.

Sources have told the Dallas Morning News the groups concentrate on survival training or train in guerrilla warfare and sabotage. Weapons, food and clothing are stockpiled at the camps.

First notice of the camps came recently with the disclosure that Ku Klux Klan members had been training at Camp Puller (named for Marine Corps Gen. Lewis B. "Chesley" Puller) near Houston. The camp is operated by John Sisente, who leads Veterans for Victory Over Communism and says he is not a Klansman.

A former associate of Texas Klan leader Louis Beam says there are at least five other paramilitary camps in Texas.

"I've been to four of the camps and heard of another," he said. "A lot of the training involves survival techniques. I really didn't object to it. It teaches citizens how to survive."

Sisente and the former Klansman, who asked not to be identified, said a group of Mormons from East Texas had also come to Camp Puller to train.

Beam, who was arrested for trying to attack Chinese Vice Premier Deng Xiaoping in Houston, says another camp will open soon in the Dallas area.

"We would like to train as many people as possible before the collapse," Beam said. "There is no doubt in my mind that this country has less than five years to exist. And only those who have prepared to survive will."

A group called Special Combat Operations Team, led by a member of the Brown Berets from Dallas, also reportedly trains at a camp about 40 miles southeast of Dallas.

6th major bust

Pot boat seized

United Press International
DULAC, La. — If a private security guard had been a little less observant, state police say they might have arrested more than one suspect in the seizure of a shrimp boat laden with 30 tons of marijuana.

Troopers were waiting Monday for the 85-foot Artista to come into port and start unloading its cargo when the security guard noticed suspicious activity and fired a warning shot.

"That pretty much burned our surveillance team," said state police spokesman Ronald Jones. "The guard didn't have any idea it was something bigger than a small burglary going down."

Jones said he could not fault the guard for doing his job, but the shot scared off anyone planning to help unload the marijuana.

The seizure Monday by sheriff's deputies and state police was the sixth major pot bust in South

Louisiana in less than two months.

One man was arrested and several others were held for questioning. Terrebonne Parish Sheriff Ronnie Duplantis said more arrests were possible.

Duplantis said some of those questioned were Cubans, and others were from Louisiana or Florida.

Last week authorities recovered 40 tons of marijuana near Shell Beach, La., from a 100-foot coastal freighter. The string of major drug busts started Oct. 29 near New Iberia with the seizure of a barge carrying 78 tons of marijuana—the largest haul ever in the United States.

Officers seized the Artista and its cargo of marijuana, as well as a 45-foot shrimp boat, a 10-wheel truck and two pickup trucks. The Artista's home port was listed as Galveston. Duplantis said none of the marijuana had been unloaded before the officers moved in.

Woman shot at home by boy's stray bullet

United Press International
NIAGARA FALLS, N.Y. — A stray bullet apparently fired by a boy, 13, shooting at garbage cans and birds, traveled about 220 feet, passed through two doors and killed a woman talking on the telephone, police said.

Detectives said Genevieve Keyes, 65, of Niagara Falls, was talking to a relative Monday when an errant gunshot, allegedly fired by the unidentified boy a block away, went through a storm door and a wooden door, hitting the woman in the neck.

After determining the direction from which the bullet came, authorities arrested the boy and said he will be charged as an adult with criminally negligent homicide.

Police said the boy was shooting at garbage cans and birds from an attic window with a .22-caliber gun.

Three people slain, six wounded

Two sought in restaurant killings

United Press International
LOS ANGELES — Police across the nation worked with composite drawings Tuesday to hunt for two men sought in the shotgun slayings of three people in a restaurant meat locker.

Security was beefed up Monday at several Bob's Big Boy restaurants and the chain offered a $10,000 reward for information leading to the arrest of the two men who herded 11 people into a walk-in refrigerator and opened fire Sunday morning, killing three.

Of the six people wounded, one restaurant employee remained in critical condition Tuesday.

Police Lt. Glenn Ackerman Monday released composite drawings of the two killers — both men in their 20s — and the police department issued a nationwide dragnet for them.

Officials of the restaurant chain, a division of Marriott, said they had increased security at several locations but they did not detail what precautions were being taken.

Police Chief Daryl Gates Monday released an account of the crime:

At 2:05 a.m. Sunday, two men entered the restaurant, each armed with a sawed-off shotgun, and announced they were robbing the place.

Eleven people — nine employees and two customers — were still inside the restaurant. They were herded at gunpoint into a rear utility room and robbed of valuables.

A total of $1,700 in the restaurant's daily receipts also were taken.

The victims were then told to enter an 8-by-15-foot walk-in refrigerator and, without warning, the gunmen opened fire with their shotguns. They fled through a rear door. No getaway vehicles were seen.

Dead inside the refrigerator were David Burrell, 20, a customer, and Dita Agtani, 23, a waitress. Ahmad Mashuck, 20, another employee, died a few hours later at a hospital.

A dishwasher, Cesario Luna, 45, was in critical condition. Also wounded but in stable condition were Tami Rogoway, 17, a customer; Evelyn Jackson, 23, Diane Irvin, 20, and Michael Malloy, all employees. Derwin Logan, 19, another employee, was treated and released.

Copies of Brillab tapes stolen

United Press International
NEW ORLEANS — The FBI's controversial Brillab tapes, made with secret wiretaps and attacked by defense attorneys as illegal, have become the center of another undercover activity — burglary.

Defense attorney Arthur Lemann, who represents Brillab co-defendant Vincent Marinello, said copies of some tapes were stolen from his office, but he stressed the burglary did not appear to be connected to the investigation.

"I can't believe it's in any way related to the case because I don't know who would want the tapes who wouldn't already have them, except the press," Lemann said Monday.

"Just a few" of the tapes chronicling conversations among the defendants were taken in the Thanksgiving weekend burglary, Lemann said. He refused to be more specific.

Defense attorneys are reviewing an estimated 30,000 tapes made through wiretaps and bugs during the year-long FBI investigation. Copies of the tapes, an integral part of the prosecution's case, have been provided to the defense attorneys to help them prepare their case.

Reputed mob boss Carlos Marcello, former Louisiana Administration Commissioner Charles Roemer, Marinello and two other men face trial Feb. 2 on charges of racketeering, fraud and conspiracy resulting from the investigation.

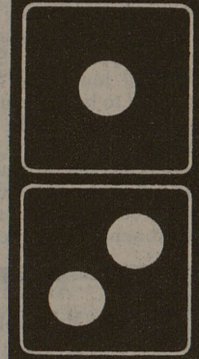

Lemann reported the theft to police and also advised federal Judge

Morey Sear in a letter, which was filed in court records reviewed Monday.

"Over the Thanksgiving weekend, my offices were burglarized and it appears that copies of some of the Brillab tapes were taken," Lemann's letter read. "I feel that I should advise you of same in view of the (court) order sealing the contents of the tapes as a condition of the government providing them to us."

Pretrial hearings in the case were held last week. A ruling is expected by the end of the month on defense motions to quash some of the evidence — including many of the tapes.
