JAZZERCISE

Jazzercise — one of the most unique types of dance fitness around — is now being offered in the Bryan-College Station area. Jazzercise is an approach to total body conditioning using joyful dance movements to music. It's your chance for a wild and woolly work-out that will condition you totally and lift your spirits. Underneath the fun and music, the point of a Jazzercise class is cardiovascular, muscular, metabolic, and emotional improvement. There's 50 minutes of bending, stretching, jumping, and dancing, built around warm-up, peak-work, and cool-down periods. The routines are composed of dance movements that anyone can do, and memorization of the dances is not required. They have been matched to fit specific music and specific purposes — each routine designed to improve the body with total fitness in mind. The Jazzercise technique was developed by Judi Sheppard Missett in response to increasing demand for a fun way to total physical fitness.

All Jazzercise students are encouraged to pace themselves and do their own level of exercise. This allows for a very personal atmosphere. Teachers are trained in positive motivation, instructing their students to relax, smile, yell and shout their troubles away. This gives the class the added feature of improving mental relaxation. Students walk away from class with a smile on their faces for a job well done. Maybe this accounts for the 70,000 students in 29 states and 11 foreign countries Jazzercise has accumulated.

Locally, Jazzercise classes will be held at the museum at the Bryan Municipal Golf Course, Villa Maria and S. College. Enrollments now taking place for classes starting February 9. Classes take place twice each week for one hour — Mondays and Wednesdays, from 6 - 7 p.m. and 7 - 8 p.m. Each four-week session, two days per week, costs $15. Enrollment is continuous and can be done by calling instructor Cindy Jochen, 693-1309. Any person, regardless of age, size, or shape can Jazzercise.

Tower picks three for posts

United Press International
AUSTIN — A senior Republican legislator and two former prosecutors have been picked by Sen. Tower, R-Texas, for jobs in the federal judiciary.
Tower said Tuesday he has recommended that President Reagan appoint Rep. Jim Nowlin, R-Antonia, a seven term legislator, a U.S. district judge for the Austin division of the Western district of Texas, and that Ed Frank, San Antonio and James A. Rahn, Dallas be appointed to U.S. district jobs in the Western and North districts of Texas.

Earlier in the week, the senator had recommended former Supreme Court Justice William J. Brennan, Jr., to be appointed by Reagan to the 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals.
Nowlin, 43, said he hopes to complete the present legislative session before moving to the federal bench and indicated the process of appointment and confirmation may be completed before the Legislature adjourns June 2.

Nowlin would replace U.S. District Judge Jack Roberts, who died in May 1980.

Prado, appointed last year by Bill Clements to be a district judge in San Antonio, lost his bid for election to a full term in November. He has previously served four years as assistant criminal district attorney in Bexar County, and four years as public defender for the Western district of Texas.

Rolfe, 40, has been an assistant U.S. attorney for six years and headed the criminal division for the past three years.

He would succeed Kenneth Mighell, who has been U.S. attorney for the Northern district since 1977.
