After-hours deliveries banned

Delivery people have been asked to come to dorms during visitation hours or else send a male to men's dorms and a female to women's dorms.

A number of residents complained that some delivery people weren't following visitation-hour rules.

Often pizzas were being delivered to the dorm rooms after hours.

To remedy the situation, the Housing Office sent a letter last semester to fast-food restaurants, florists, and local clubs which put out flyers, said David Bergen, chairman of the University Concessions Committee.

The letter asked that delivery people abide by University regulations regarding visitation hours. Enclosed with the letter was a copy of the visitation guidelines.

Bergen said the companies have been cooperative; he hasn't received any complaints from residents this semester.

The University has the authority to have the campus police escort anyone out of the dorm if there is a violation of the visitation-hour rules.

Anti-women club policy condemned

United Press International
AUSTIN — The House today passed a resolution asking the Legislature to refuse to attend any public or private functions that refuse to serve women.

Rep. Anita Hill, R-Garland, and the 10 other women members of the House introduced the resolution.

Hill earlier in the week was refused entrance to the Citadel Club in the Driskell Hotel. She was attempting to have lunch with several male constituents at the club. She was told the club did not allow women until 1:30 p.m.

Clint Small, the Citadel's president, said he did not blame Hill for being angry. But he said the club is not up to handle women.

The club president also said that without women the noise level is less and there are "no particular distractions" for men "talking shop."

The resolution also asks that any public or private facility that is open to one member of the Legislature should be opened to all members.
