Campus Theater 846-6512

Seems Like Old Times: Goldie Hawn and Chevy Chase, two extremely talented comedians, star in only an average, but still funny Neil Simon movie. Chase plays Hawn's ex-bank robber husband who eventually clashes with her current husband who's out to capture the inept criminal. Rated PG.

Rocky Horror Picture Show: This is the story of "Ballpark" Frank-N-Furter, who gets beefed up over his creature who has great buns. Yes, it's time to relish those moments when dinner consists of leftover meatloaf — that is, when the characters eat at the table. This is one movie in which the audience is toasted and reigns supreme. Midnight Friday and Saturday. Rated R.

Manor East 823-8300

Fort Apache, The Bronx: Paul Newman and Edward Asner, two acting heavyweights, team in this New York police drama in which the police are fighting an almost losing battle against the gangs, junkies and pyromaniacs of the Bronx. Rated R. See review on page four of this issue.

Charlie Chan and the Curse of the Dragon Lady: Another cute comedy that pokes fun at old movies. This time the old Charlie Chan films are satirized. Angie Dickinson stars, but there's no guarantee her hair will be combed. Rated PG.

Blues Brothers: "Saturday Night Live" dropouts John Belushi and Dan Ackroyd continue to pretend to be blues singers. First was their gold album, now it's their movie which features some real soul singers like Aretha Franklin and the James Brown. The boys are looking for ways to save the orphanage in which they were reared. Midnight Friday and Saturday. Rated R.

Caddyshack: Bill Murray and Chevy Chase are definitely all right in this country club version of "Animal House." Best of all is Rodney Dangerfield, who's hilarious every time he's on screen. Also starring is Ted Knight. Don't miss the gopher dancing to Kenny Loggins' good music. Midnight Friday and Saturday. Rated R.

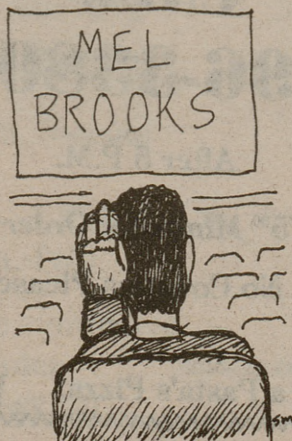

The Big Red One: Lee Marvin does a superb job in this well-made war movie. The story is typical — a group of American boys fight their way across Europe during World War II. But the direction, script and acting is superior to that of most English-speaking films produced the last couple of years. Midnight Friday and Saturday. Rated PG.

MSC Box Office 845-2916

Xanadu: About 90 minutes of roller disco, Olivia Newton-John and Electric Light Orchestra music. If you can handle that combination, the Marines are looking for you. Also caught in this fantasy story is Gene Kelly, who was roller skating before Olivia Newton-John was born. Thursday at 7:30 and 9:45 in Rudder Theatre. Rated PG.

M*A*S*H: Donald Sutherland and Elliot Gould are the incomparable Hawkeye Pierce and Trapper John in movie that's every bit as good as the television series. Director Robert Altman doesn't go for all the punchlines, so don't expect to be tickled pink. Just expect to be thoroughly entertained. Friday and Saturday at midnight in Rudder Theatre. Rated R.

Silent Movie: With the exception of one spoken word, this is truly a silent movie. Mel Brooks and Marty Feldman star in this madcap comedy about a has-been movie director and his attempt to climb back to make another hit. If the movie gets a little boring (this is no "Blazing Saddles"), count all the big stars who make cameo appearances.

Sunday at 7:30 in Rudder Theatre. Rated PG.

Cousin, Cousine: This hilarious French comedy is about kissing cousins, but thankfully it's no Elvis Presley film. Nominated for an Academy Award, this movie is guaranteed to be funny no matter in what language it's heard. Wednesday at 7:30 in Rudder Theatre. Rated R.

Plitt Cinema I&II 846-6714

My Bloody Valentine: First it was "Halloween" then it was "Friday the 13th." Now it's Valentine's Day — guess it's time for another massacre. Holidays just aren't sacred anymore these days. Rated R.

Stir Crazy: The two funniest men in movies, Richard Pryor and Gene Wilder, are paired in what should be an absolutely hilarious film. Well, it's not quite that great, but it's still pretty good. Pryor and Wilder are accidentally accused of robbing a bank and accidentally sent to prison. They should have been carted to the funny farm. Rated R.
