Miss Texas A&M pageant held Friday and Saturday

By KATHY O'CONNELL

MSC Hospitality Committee will host the second annual Miss Texas A&M scholarship pageant on Feb. 20-21 in Rudder Auditorium.

Twenty contestants will compete in evening gowns, swimsuits and talent for the opportunity to represent Texas A&M University.

Before selection to participate in the pageant finals, applicants must pass a preliminary screening where they perform their talent and answer questions concerning current events.

Kelly McElroy, the 1980-81 Miss Texas A&M, said there is an interview with a panel of judges. Some are related to the school, while others are from the community, she said.

The secondary education major said the pageant could be more accurately described as a talent pageant, rather than a scholarship pageant, since 50 percent of the scores depend on talent. The other 50 percent comes from the interview.

McElroy, who thinks it's unfair that pageant contestants are stereotyped as having no brains said, "First of all, it's not a beauty pageant and that's part of the stereotype. It's a scholarship pageant.

"In the Miss America pageant they're real sticklers about not wanting beauty entering into it. If

Circle K presents three with club pins, keeps annual 'week'

Circle K International's ultimate goal is to create a sense of caring in people by helping others, said Steve Fairfield, governor of Circle K's district chapter.

Circle K, sponsored by the Kiwanis Club, is the largest collegiate service organization in the nation with 13,000 members and 750 branch clubs throughout the United States and Canada.

This week is the 13th annual observance of Circle K Week by a 1980 proclamation of Congress.

The club initiates various fund raising projects for national charities such as the American Heart Association, said Clark Haley, local president of Circle K.

Circle K also works with disadvantaged, orphaned and delinquent children, senior citizens, the mentally retarded and the

RHA to look at housing policies for fifth years

At their regular meeting in 209 Harrington Wednesday at 7 p.m., Residence Halls Association members were to continue discussion of the proposed transition program for fifth-year seniors and graduate students. The new housing policy to be implemented in the fall will not allow the on-campus housing of those students.

RHA President Sherrie Balcar said the program is being sponsored by RHA along with the Off Campus Center.

RHA members were also to review a proposal to put kitchenettes in Mosher Hall. The proposal, approved earlier this semester by Dr. John J. Koldus, vice president for student services, and Dr. Charles Samson, acting president of Texas A&M University, would put a microwave oven and a toaster oven in each of two study carrels sometime this semester.

Balcar said RHA would like to see kitchenettes in all dorms if the Mosher project is successful.

Also on the agenda were project progress reports on Casino, Parents' Day, and the RHA National Convention to be held at Texas A&M May 21-24.
