

Aggies beaten by Trinity

By RICK STOLLE

After a long, hard match in which the Ags had to battle the crowd as well as their opponent, the Texas A&M University men's tennis team took it on the chin as they lost to ninth-ranked Trinity University, 9-0, in a dual match. The Thursday match was played in beautiful weather in San Antonio but was marred by the conduct of the Trinity fans. "In all my 23 years of coaching," said Aggie coach David

Kent, "I have never seen such a bad talking group of fans." Kent said the fans disrupted the match by screaming obscenities at the Aggie players in the middle of points. "Don't get me wrong," said Kent. "We were beaten soundly. Trinity has a much better team than we do and we have no excuse." He said he believes the team will bounce back, though. "We weren't prepared for the crowd," he said. "That's my fault."

Trinity simply got the breaks. Four matches went to three sets apiece and the Ags did not win any. Of the six tie-breakers, the Ags won one. In singles: Brian Joelson lost to John Benson 3-6, 6-3, 6-4; Max King lost to Mark Pinchoff 6-4, 6-2; Reid Freeman lost to Tom Warneke 6-3, 6-2; Trey Schutz lost to Charles Honey 6-7, 7-5, 6-4; Tom Judson lost to Tal Henry 7-5, 3-6, 6-4 and Leonard Smith lost to Peter Mako 6-2, 7-5. Doubles results: Joelson-Freeman lost to Benson-Honey 5-7, 6-3, 7-5; Kowal-Judson lost to Pinchoff-Warneke 6-1, 6-2 and Smith-Jim Grubert lost to Mako-Henry 3-6, 6-3, 6-3. The Ags next action is Tuesday against Austin Peay University at 1:30 at the Omar Smith Tennis Center.

Aggies take on SFA

The Texas A&M University women's tennis team will face Stephen F. Austin University in a 10 a.m. match Saturday at the Omar Smith Tennis Center. The possible line-up for Saturday is Liliana Fernandez, Pam Hill, Maylyn Hooton, Amy Closs, Sonja Hutcherson and Laura Hanna. Doubles partners are: Hill-Hutcherson, Closs-Hanna and Hooton-Fernandez.

Coach Jan Cannon said the line-up is subject to change anytime before the match.

Small man makes a big mark in high school basketball play

United Press International
HUTCHINS, Texas — Anthony "Spud" Webb has grown five inches since last basketball season and it's made him into a star — the kind of player who averages 25 points a game, intimidates the opposition by blocking shots and thrills the crowd with showy super dunks. Spud needed the extra inches, too. They pushed him from 4-foot-11, as of last June, to 5-foot-4. Yet he dunks with style, occasionally plays the low post and has been known to stuff the shots of 6-foot-8 opponents. The crowd loves it. Last year Webb, who weighs 125 pounds, was a junior varsity guard for Wilmer-Hutchins High School, located outside Dallas. During the summer he grew, worked hard on strengthening his legs and discovered he could dunk. "I figured it was time I started growing," he said. The result was amazing and opponents can't help but ask — often in mid-game — how he does it. "I tell them it's a secret," Webb said. "Sometimes they just stare at me. I can tell they are surprised by the way they holler. "I've put a lot of hard work into this. I run a mile each day and go up and down the bleachers 20 or 25 times and practice jumping after I run." Wilmer-Hutchins Coach Homer Smith says Webb isn't fast but still manages to drive the lane and take on forwards and centers, double pumping and getting his shot off on the way down or drawing a foul. His high game was 39 points this year and he's scored 20 or more in all but three games this season for his 22-8 team. North Garland forward Joe Walters recently found out about

Webb. With the game tied in the third quarter, Walters was on his way to a breakaway layup. As he jumped, Spud came from behind and blocked the shot. The ball rolled away. Walters is 6-foot-8. Earlier in the year Wilmer-Hutchins was playing state-ranked Fort Worth Dunbar on the road before a big crowd. Dunbar's all-state forward, Wille Ashley, worked his way to a violent two-handed dunk and the crowd went wild. Spud, standing at midcourt, grabbed the ensuing long in-bounds pass, drove ahead, soared, arched his back and stuffed the dunk of his own in retaliation. "The place went crazy," he said. "I could hardly keep from coming onto the court. I knew then that we had a player." Webb's mother started calling him "Spud" when he was a reference to Sputnik, the first satellite. The nickname stuck to his head, which she said was big. It looked like it belonged in orbit. Now it's more descriptive of his jumping ability.

Undefeated Aggies to host San Antonio

The undefeated Texas A&M men's lacrosse team returns to action Saturday afternoon when they will host the San Antonio Lacrosse Club on the main drill field. The Aggies extended their record to 3-0 over the weekend, beating Baylor, 23-10, Saturday and Texas Tech, 13-8, Sunday. Tech was considered one of the toughest teams in the area. Duke Whelan, A&M coach, said the San Antonio team could be tougher than Tech because they have more experienced players. A&M beat the club last fall. Game time is set for 1 p.m.
