'Running Bear' ad searching for bride

HURLWOOD—A boyhood filled with work in the cotton fields, an adult life bound by obligations to his family left B.D. Curry time to find a wife. Now, at 67 years of age, he wants to get married. He has advertised the fact.

Currey is not an Indian, but he is a bit shy, so he identified himself only as "Running Bear" in an ad placed recently in a Lubbock newspaper.

"Running Bear got lonesome life," the ad began. "Have a warm teepee fire, make cornbread. Maybeso Squaw leave me Maybeso Squaw stay six months, one year. Try heap much Squaw, so after Squaw leave, Squaw remember good things. Maybeso Squaw interested send up smoke signals."

About 20 potential fire tenders answered the ad. Curry is the options and hoping one of the respondents will end his bachelorhood.

"I haven't had a life worth living yet," he said. "I've had a rough life, and I don't want to die a bachelor. If I had someone and it lasted to the end, it would be nice."

"If she gives me a chance, I'd purposely and intentionally try her; if she did leave, she would have something good to remember. Spoiling folks was what got Currey into bachelorhood in the first place and kept him there."

The pattern was set before he can remember, on a Little County farm where he went to work in the fields by 4 a.m. He was 7 years old, he was plowing with a team of horses all day and pick as much cotton as an adult.

"Dad's health was bad, and us little kids made what living we could. I saw the inside of a schoolhouse, but my brother changed that for the younger boys. We did the work, and the younger brothers went to school."

His boyhood ambition was to own a restaurant, so when he needed help in the kitchen, he "killed two birds with one stone" helping out and learning all the locally famous recipes.

When Curry's childhood friends began dating in their late teens, Currey tried it too.

"There I was trying to date and they're giggling and laughing having fun, and I could see no point in that, no fun whatsoever," he said.

Currey, however, had his eye on a special girl. When a date materialized, she turned out to be like all the others: "giggling and laughing."

The next day, he spent long hours wondering about his marriage. A decade passed before a family doctor took him to his withdrawn existence. He decided to give romance another try.

Actually, trying to pick up the reins of courtship was too much problem for Currey because caring for his parents took most of his time. Then, in later years, he had to look after one of his brothers who was "mentally destroyed" in World War II.

Now Currey believes it is time he did some living for himself, why he advertised for a bride.

"I'd like to cook her breakfast," he said. "I'd like to have breakfast in bed."

Driver shoots walkers, 2 wounded

United Press International

LAFAYETTE, La.—A driver apparently aggravated because he had to stop at an intersection a group of pedestrians crossing the street, jumped from his car, dishing a gun and opening the group, wounding two students, police said Saturday.

Jody Fontenot, 22, of Lousas, was shot in the back. Cindy Kline, 19, of Lafayette, received a superficial wound to the head. Fontenot was in station after surgery to remove a bullet lodged near his brain was treated at a local hospital.

"He had to stop to pedestrians cross the street. Capt. Anthony Navarre apparently aggravated him point where he jumped from car and started firing at crowd."

Navarre said the gunman fired five or six shots with a "Night Special" or a .22 caliber revolver. Navarre said the would face two counts of murder.

The group of students leaving a popular night spot the Southwestern Louisiana campus when the shooting about 1 a.m. Saturday.
