Texas A&M's Rodney Hodde takes a cut at a low fastball during action Monday as the Aggies played Hardin-Simmons University. Hodde, who was batting an incredible .900 for the season after the series, was 5-for-5 as the Aggies swept a doubleheader from the Cowboys. Texas A&M opens the conference season against Rice at 3 p.m. Friday afternoon in a nine-inning game.

Speedway April race postponed

There will be no Indy car race at Texas World Speedway on April 5. Cold and wet weather conditions the past three weeks have not allowed sufficient work to be done on the race track.

Once the work is finished, tires must be tested and manufactured, and last week CART decided there was not sufficient time to do it.

No decision has been reached on a new date for the race later in the year as other scheduling conflicts must be worked out.

The Great Texas Truck Race for the 10-wheel diesel bobtail trucks will take place May 3, and the third annual NASCAR 400 will be run June 7.

Anyone who has purchased tickets for the Indy car race can either hold them until the postponed date, exchange them for another event or receive a refund.

Missouri not looking past Lamar in NCAA tourney

United Press International AUSTIN — Norm Stewart warns that his Missouri Tigers would be playing Russian roulette to look past Lamar to fourth-ranked LSU in the NCAA Tournament.

Big Eight champion Missouri remembers LSU as the team which knocked it out of the NCAA Tournament in the third round last year, but before it can keep a Saturday afternoon date with the Louisiana team, it must beat Lamar tonight in the first round of the Midwest Regional.

Arkansas is a heavy favorite to defeat Mercer in the second of the first-round games at the University of Texas' Erwin Special Events Center. The winner of that game advances to play Louisville, which like LSU drew a bye through the first round.

Odds makers make Missouri, 22-9, a slight favorite to beat Lamar, 24-4, a Texas team from the Southland Conference, despite an early season 92-70 win over the Cardinals.

Missouri forward Curtis Berry compared Lamar to Big Eight foe Kansas, a team which knocked the Tigers out of the conference post-season tournament following their win in the regular season.

Stewart Wednesday strongly indicated his team had better not be underestimating Lamar.

"I hope there is absolutely no chance, that that is a zero factor," he said, "because I think my players understand basketball, today's basketball. All the teams here are quality teams. Some are overlooked, but all are quality."

He added, "If you are going to overlook someone at this point, you are playing Russian roulette. There's no reason to be overconfident."

Lamar Coach Pat Foster said he placed his team, which the NCAA selection committee seeded one notch higher than Missouri, in the "overlooked" category.

"It's understandable," he said, "because we haven't been on national TV or regional TV. That happens. It's no big — well, it's a big deal to us, but it's not to other people."

Lamar scoring leader Mike Olliver, when he met with the media following a workout Wednesday, seemed excited with the opportunity to play Missouri again. He said Lamar did not respect Missouri before the first meeting on the Tigers' home court.

"It'll be a different story this time because we know Missouri is a tough team. Right now we're playing better ball than we were at any other time of the year. And it's the right time. We have something to prove to Missouri," he said.

Lamar is the eighth-seeded team in the 12-team Midwest Regional; Missouri is ninth-seeded.

Odds makers, however, make Missouri a 45-1 shot to win the tournament, while Lamar's betting line is 50-1.

Foster pointed to the battle between 6-11 Missouri center Steve Stipanovich and 6-8 Lamar center B.B. Davis as a key to the game, but Stewart said that matchup was one of many of the important factors.

In the Dec. 6 game, Stipanovich scored 21 points in the first half, and the Tigers' front line dominated the game.

"We have to rebound better," Foster said.
