Auditorium named for Williams

The auditorium in Texas A&M's Robert Justus Kleberg Jr. Animal and Food Science Center will be named today in honor of D.W. Williams, Texas A&M University System vice chancellor emeritus and acting president of the University from 1956-57.

Williams, who retired in 1958 after 39 years of Texas A&M service, will be honored at 2 p.m. ceremonies in the primary assembly area of the 3-year-old building.

TAMU System Board of Regents Chairman H.R. Bright will formally name the facility and unveil a portrait of Williams. Dr. Charles H. Samson, Texas A&M's acting president, will speak and tributes to Williams will be made by M.B. Inman, a longtime friend of the honoree, and Dr. O.D. Butler, associate deputy chancellor for agriculture. Dr. Zerle Carpenter, head of the Animal Science Department, will preside.

Williams joined Texas A&M in 1919 as associate professor of animal husbandry and served as head of the department from 1922 until 1946. He was named vice president for agriculture in 1946 and was elevated to vice chancellor for agriculture in 1948, the position he held for 10 years except for the period when he served as acting Texas A&M president. He was designated vice chancellor emeritus in 1962.

Meteorological group to meet in O&M Building tonight

The American Meteorological Society will meet at 7 p.m. tonight in 112 O&M Building.

Dr. Stefan Gartner and Dr. James McGuirk will speak on "Long-range Hindcasting: The Extinction of the Dinosaur." Refreshments will be served at the meeting.

Postmaster says rates will climb

By DIANA SULTENFUSS

The U.S. Postal Service increased postage to 18 cents a letter and 12 cents for postcards beginning this week and a local postmaster predicts a request for another increase within a year.

The increase was a result of rising inflation, College Station Postmaster C.L. Matcek said. "Everything we use, both supplies and services, has gone up tremendously. The price of gasoline has at least doubled since our last rate increase three years ago," Matcek said.

"I'm afraid we'll have to ask for another raise within a year because increasing inflation will eat this one up," he said.

"It seems high to send a letter to Bryan for 18 cents," he said. "But people can also send a letter to Hawaii or Alaska for the same price."

James Nix, window technician at the main Bryan Post Office, said the postal service feels it needs 20 cents as the new postal rate. "But I don't foresee that getting through anytime soon," he said. "Maybe next year."

New purple non-denominational "B" stamps were sold beginning March 16 to allow distribution of stamps to post offices in advance of the Postal Service Board of Governor's decision on the rate change, Matcek said.

"Then no matter what the board decides, the post office will have stamps on hand for the change," he said. "You never know until the last minute what the new rate will be. The board may not grant the entire increase."

The "B" stamps are only for mail within the United States. Foreign countries will not accept them because the stamps are non-denominational.

Both Matcek and Nix said there may be problems in vending the new purple stamps. The stamps are only printed in sheets, not in coils.

"We'll probably have to package them and sell them in the vending machines in packets of five or so," Nix said.

Nix said it will also be difficult to sell the remaining 15-cent stamps.

The last rate increase was in May 1978. At that time, the orange "A" stamp was issued, Nix said.
