MX missile opposed by farmers

United Press International
DALHART — Farmers opposing deployment of the MX missile system in the Texas Panhandle-eastern New Mexico area have been the most vocal of the opponents of the massive project.

The farmers have based their arguments on the basis that the project is taking up valuable agricultural lands.

The agricultural land issue has been the dominant theme of testimony at hearings in Austin, Lubbock and Amarillo concerning deployment of the estimated $33.8 billion missile package.

In Amarillo Monday, more than 30 people lashed out at the proposed system, which according to an environmental statement, could be placed in the Panhandle and eastern New Mexico. The location is an alternative consideration to a site in the deserts of Nevada and Utah.

State Rep. Chip Staniswalis,

R-Amarillo, spoke on behalf of Texas House Speaker Bill Clayton.

Reading from a statement, Staniswalis voiced opposition to the Air Force's plan to take an estimated 80,000 acres of farm land out of agricultural production.

"To take many acres of highly productive land out of production when there is a world food shortage is not prudent," the legislator said.

If the project is located in the area, than more than 46,000 square miles would be used to house the system. Dalhart and Clovis, N.M., would be central locations for the operation.

Potter County Commissioner Mark Ensign, speaking on behalf of the Commissioners Court, said the MX system "must not be placed here."

Ensign told the Air Force hearing panel that location of the system in the area will cause "great destruction of invaluable agricultural lands" and will have "adverse impact on this area, its environment, economics and people."

Ensign said taxpayers do not support the proposed deployment because it is not proven safe.

"They do not support this inordinate expenditure of tax funds for an unproven gamble based on the theory of the con man's shell game," he said.

The Air Force panel is conducting similar hearings today in Clovis and Thursday in Roswell, N.M.

Dallas computer firm still pushing for Iran money

United Press International
NEW ORLEANS — In what could be a legal precedent threatening the hostage agreement, a Dallas computer firm argues it should be allowed to collect $19 million awarded in a lawsuit filed against Iran before the 53 Americans were taken captive.

A U.S. Justice Department attorney argued Monday, however, that Electronic Data Systems "solicited" Iran and therefore should not be allowed to collect the money until an international tribunal could hear the case.

Any ruling on the case by the 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals could set a legal precedent for hundreds of other suits against Iran by U.S. creditors and could even nullify former President Carter's agreement that won release of the hostages.

The three-judge panel hearing the case recessed Monday to decide on a request by the Justice Department to file post-argument briefs that would take two weeks to prepare. A decision was expected today.

Justice Department attorneys said the briefs would concern the history of presidential actions and the Sovereign Immunities Act, which deals with jurisdiction in international lawsuits.

EDS is pressing its claim to $19 million the company won in a breach of contract lawsuit filed against Iran in February 1979 — eight months before a mob stormed the U.S. embassy in Tehran and seized 53 Americans.

EDS' successful lawsuit against Iran charged the country failed to pay for data processing services the company provided.

But the legal battle was complicated by the hostages' release and by a U.S.-Iran agreement that all frozen Iranian assets would be returned except for a fund of up to $1 billion to satisfy claims by American creditors against Iran.

Under the agreement negotiated by Carter and ratified by President Reagan, all claims against Iran must be submitted to a special international tribunal — not heard in American courts.

Attorneys representing EDS argue the agreement should not apply in their case because, unlike any other American creditor, the computer firm had filed its suit against Iran long before the hostage agreement was signed.

"We want this court to dismiss the government appeal for lack of jurisdiction," said EDS attorney Thomas Luce. "We had no doubt that Congress intended for this to be argued in American courts."

However, the Justice Department argued the case cannot be decided by U.S. courts because the contract was made in Iran.

FOUR CRUCIAL REVELATIONS Of The New Testament

(2) CHRIST IS IN US

The initial revelation of the New Testament concerning Christ is that He is our salvation. Thus, salvation is a person-Christ! This salvation is experienced simply by receiving Christ.

The result of our receiving Christ is that He now indwells us and has become our life (Rom. 8:10; Col. 3:4). Have you ever realized this? Some have been genuine Christians for years, yet have never seen this. Nevertheless, Christ in us is the focus and center of God's salvation. It is for this that we have been forgiven, cleansed, and redeemed. No human words could fully express the mystery of this great truth. Christ literally lives in us!

This revelation of Christ within us was taught by the Lord Himself in His earthly ministry. Jesus said, "At that day ye shall know that I am in my Father, and ye in me, and I in you" (John 14:20). Formerly, Jesus was only among His disciples, but "at that day" (the day of His resurrection) He was to be in them.

The New Testament Epistles enlarge this revelation. Although the Apostle Paul had formerly spent many years in an outward religion, he testified that "it pleased God... to reveal his Son in me" (Gal. 1:15-16). What a contrast! Paul was transferred from an outward religion to an inward Christ! In the same Epistle he also declared, "I live; yet not I, but Christ liveth in me" (2:20). What an intimate oneness! The resurrected Christ who appeared to Paul on the road to Damascus was now living in him. Not only by his experience but also by his teaching, Paul went on to show that Christ indwells the believer. Consider the following verses: "Know ye not your own selves, how that Jesus Christ is in you" (2 Cor. 13:5); "Christ in you, the hope of glory" (Col. 1:27); "And if Christ be in you... the spirit is alive because of righteousness" (Rom. 8:10, Gk.). By these and many other verses, the Bible unveils that Christ not only died for us, but also lives in us.

After hearing that Christ is in us, we may ask ourselves, "but how is this possible?" It is possible because, through death and resurrection, Christ became inwardly available to us as the life-giving Spirit. "The last Adam (Christ) became a life-giving Spirit" (1 Cor. 15:45, Gk.); "Now the Lord is that Spirit" (2 Cor. 3:17). As the Spirit, Christ regenerated us at our new birth (John 3:6), and now "The Spirit himself beareth witness with our spirit, that we are children of God" (Rom. 8:16, A.S.V.). Furthermore, as the Spirit, Christ is living in us and transforming us from glory to glory (2 Cor. 3:18). A full experience of the indwelling Christ as the Spirit will cause us to testify with Paul, "For to me to live is Christ" (Phil. 1:21). Surely this is the normal Christian life — having this treasure (Christ) in earthen vessels that He may be expressed in all of our living (2 Cor. 4:7).

The remaining two crucial revelations of the New Testament will be covered each Wednesday for the next two weeks.
