Houston official indicted for bribery

United Press International
HOUSTON — A Port of Houston commissioner and three labor leaders were indicted Tuesday on federal charges of bribery and racketeering for allegedly attempting to influence the awarding of health insurance contracts to a union and the city of Houston.

A federal grand jury, which ended its 18-month impanelment with the indictments, last year indicted Texas House Speaker Bill Clayton, two Austin lawyers and Deer Park labor leader L. G. Moore for conspiracy, bribery and racketeering. Clayton and the two lawyers were acquitted.

The new indictment charged Moore with bribery and racketeering relating to the multi-million dollar contract for the city's employee health insurance contract.

The indictment said Moore and Houston Port Commissioner John Garrett conspired with two unnamed New Orleans men to give kickbacks to a Houston city councilman for his influence in getting the city to change its employee health contract to Prudential.

Officials said the two New Orleans men were not indicted because they were on trial in a different case.

In a second indictment Tuesday, Harold Grubbs and Sherman Fricks, two officials with the Pipefitters Union, were charged with bribery and conspiracy relating to the health insurance contract awarded to their union.

The cases, which used undercover FBI agents posing as insurance agents, were set up by government informant Joseph Hauser. Hauser has been instrumental in all four Brilab indictments returned this year, including the one presently in trial in New Orleans involving reputed crime boss Carlos Marcello and attorney Vincent Marinello.

Houston City Councilman Jim Westmoreland was not named in the indictment. He had appeared before the grand jury twice and denied any wrongdoing.

"I was not personally involved in any wrongdoing," Westmoreland told reporters.

Federal officials would not say if they intended to call as witnesses any present or former council members.

Clayton, who was acquitted in October, said Tuesday when he heard of the indictments, that he did not think it related to his case.

"But I'll make myself available to testify if they want me to," he said.

Moore is scheduled to go to trial in August on the year-old criminal charges.

Moore and Garrett were also charged Tuesday with interstate transportation in aid of racketeering enterprises. The four-count indictment outlines 31 illegal acts between September 1979 and January 1980 which allegedly showed how Moore, Garrett, undercover agents, unindicted co-conspirators and the unnamed councilman set up the transfer of $5,000 from one person to another.

The case involving Moore and Garrett will be tried before U.S. District Judge Norman Black. U.S. District Judge Gabrielle McDonald will hear the case involving Frick and Grubbs.

Senate approves bill changes

United Press International
AUSTIN — The Senate agreed without debate Tuesday to go along with House changes in a bill permitting prosecutors to use recorded confessions in criminal cases, sending the bill to the governor for his signature.

The bill by Sen. Bob Glasgow, D-Stephenville, requires that tapes of confessions include the "Miranda warning" advising defendants of their right to an attorney and that their comments may be against them.

Senators approved the House changes on voice vote, and now all that needs only the signature of Gov. Bill Clements to become law.

4 admit guilt in coup try

United Press International
NEW ORLEANS — Four blue jean-clad soldiers of fortune Tuesday admitted in court to planning and financing an expedition to overthrow the government of a tiny Caribbean nation.

The four, standing stiffly before a federal judge and answering all questions with "Yes" and "Yes, your honor," changed their pleas from innocent to guilty and agreed to cooperate with an ongoing investigation of the coup attempt against Dominica.

Last week Michael Perdue of Houston admitted spearheading the operation to take over the smallest independent nation in the Western Hemisphere. It failed when the 10 men, many of whom have strong ties to the Ku Klux Klan, were arrested April 27 near New Orleans.

Returning for arraignment Tuesday were Robert William Prichard, 30, of Raleigh, N.C.; Wolfgang Walter Droege, 31, of Toronto; Larry Jacklin, 22, of Listowel, Canada, and Christopher Billy Anderson, 41, of Oklahoma City.

In accepting the plea bargain agreement, the four agreed to "testify truthfully and cooperate fully" with any grand jury or other investigation of the coup attempt.

In return for their cooperation, federal prosecutors will recommend six remaining charges against them be dropped. The count to which they pleaded guilty carries a maximum penalty of three years in prison and $3,000 in fines.

Bond remained at $100,000 for Prichard and $500,000 each for the other three.

U.S. District Judge Lansing Mitchell ordered Jacklin's plea amended so the defendant could be covered under the federal Youth Corrections Act. Under the statute, Jacklin will be placed on probation for two years after he serves his sentence.

If authorities decide he is rehabilitated the entire episode will be wiped from his record.

Sentencing was scheduled for July 1, but Mitchell encouraged probation officers to complete investigations by June 17 so the four could be sentenced with Perdue.

Another of the mercenaries, George T. Mulvaney, 21, Jackson, Miss., is set for arraignment Friday at 11 a.m.

Prosecutor Lindsay Larson predicted each of the 10 mercenaries eventually would enter guilty pleas.

After Perdue admitted he financed the unsuccessful coup, the government dropped six charges against him and reduced his maximum possible sentence from 50 years in prison to three years and a $3,000 fine.

Inmates may work on roads

United Press International
AUSTIN — The House tentatively approved without debate Tuesday a bill that would allow the State Highway and Public Transportation Commission to use the state's prisoners in highway improvement projects.

The measure by Rep. Rodney Tow, D-Conroe, would allow the highway and public transportation department to contract with the Texas Department of Corrections for inmate labor for improvement and maintenance projects on Texas highways.

Inmates contracted to work would not help construct highways, but would only be used on beautification projects such as litter-cleaning, landscaping, mowing and guard rail repair.

Inmates would work strictly on a volunteer basis and would receive no compensation for their work since the state already provides them with room and board.
