

Friends chosen first in draft

United Press International
NEW YORK — They are just two college undergraduates from Chicago who are close friends and who happen to play basketball better than almost anyone in the world.

And now Mark Aguirre and Isiah Thomas have something else in common — they're a pair of Windy City millionaires.

Aguirre, the All-America forward from DePaul with thoroughbred talent and racehorse emotions, and Thomas, the tiny stick of dynamite who ignited Indiana to the national championship, Tuesday were the first two players chosen in the NBA college draft.

Tying things up even more neatly, both Aguirre, who was grabbed by the Dallas Mavericks on the first pick, and Thomas, taken No. 2 by the Detroit Pistons, have the same agent. Each will get starting salaries of about $400,000 plus sizeable signing bonuses.

"I left school because I needed to help my mother," Aguirre said. "This is a great opportunity for me," Thomas added. "I can always go back to school, but I can't always make a million dollars."

Several other first rounders could join that exclusive class. The New Jersey Nets, with three of the first 18 selections, got Maryland's talented front line of Buck Williams (No. 3 overall pick) and Albert King (No. 10), and Indiana forward Ray Tolbert (No. 18).

Atlanta swapped places in the first round with Chicago to grab North Carolina forward Al Wood as the No. 4 pick. Seattle followed by taking Utah forward Danny Vranes and Chicago picked Notre Dame forward Orlando Woolridge.

Using the No. 7 choice, Kansas City selected the first center in the draft, Oregon State's Steve Johnson. San Diego followed by taking Utah forward Tom Chambers and Dallas used its second first round pick, the ninth overall, for Kansas State guard Rolando Blackman.

Washington used No. 11 to take Wake Forest point guard Frank Johnson. Detroit selected Notre Dame All-America Kelly Tripucka and Utah then grabbed Syracuse center Dan Schayes.

Herb Williams, Ohio State's center, went to Indiana as the 14th choice. Portland, with the 15th and 16th picks, took a pair of guards — Jeff Lamp of Virginia and Darnell Valentine of Kansas.

Kansas City pulled the first mild surprise by taking forward Kevin Loder of Alabama State with the 17th pick. Michigan forward Mike McGee went to Los Angeles on the 19th choice, then Clemson forward Larry Nance was taken by Phoenix and Arizona State center Alton Lister went to Milwaukee.

Philadelphia, which had been rumored in the market for a shooting forward, took Cleveland State point guard Franklin Edwards instead. Boston closed out the first round by selecting Wyoming guard Charles Bradley.

Another potential draft-roulette winner was Boston, which tabbed Brigham Young All-America guard Danny Ainge in the second round even though he is on the first year of a $500,000, three-year contract to play professional baseball for the Toronto Blue Jays.

Golden State added a light touch to the proceedings by picking 7-8 center Chibi Okayama from the University of Osaka in Japan in the eighth round. The 303-pound Okayama tried and failed to play basketball at the University of Portland before returning to his homeland.

In a move presumably engineered by former UCLA Coach Brown, New Jersey also used one of its "garbage-time" picks to select UCLA basketball manager Vic Sison in the 10th round. Sison stands 5-7½ and weighs 137 pounds.

In all, 223 players were selected during the 10 rounds, which took six hours and 15 minutes to complete.

Rose hits twice as Phillies run past slumping Astros

United Press International
PHILADELPHIA — The Philadelphia Phillies and the Houston Astros played baseball Tuesday night but most in the crowd of 33,978 didn't pay much attention to the deeds of 29 of the 30 men who competed.

They left for home knowing the Phillies defeated the Astros 10-3 for their fourth straight win, that Mike Schmidt drove in two runs with a triple in a five-run third inning and that winning pitcher Marty Bystrom bounced back from two weeks of shoulder problems with six solid innings.

But the man of the hour, just as he's been the man of many hours over the past 18 seasons, was Peter Edward Rose.

And for many in the crowd, as well as the tens of thousands of extra people who will crowd the Veterans Stadium turnstiles this evening, tonight could be the night.

Rose went 2-for-4 to move within two hits of breaking Stan Musial's National League career record of 3,630. The Phillies' 40-year-old first baseman can tie or top the mark tonight as his mother Musial, among others, watch anxiously.

"I'd like to get it tomorrow," Rose told a reporter at his locker. "I think I'll be excited to have two Hall of Fame pitchers pitching. What can you ask for with Nolan Ryan against Steve Carlton? It's like a Hollywood director wrote it."

"I know one thing — I'll be swinging and trying."

Rose's first hit, a line shot up the middle of Joe Niekro, 6-5, sparked the Phillies' big comeback. Schmidt knocked home two with his opposite triple and scored on Dick Davis' single. Two runs came home when Houston leftfielder Jose Misplayed Larry Bowa's single for an error second Astro miscue of the inning.

Rose swung badly at a high outside pitch eighth from Houston pitcher Bobby Sprol hitting a slider up the middle for No. 3, Edmar Fajardo.

Cesar Cedeno drove in two runs for the Phillies with a sacrifice fly and single and Cruz had a single that had temporarily tied the game 1-1.

NCAA finds SMU guilty

United Press International
DALLAS — The NCAA has found the Southern Methodist University football program guilty of 20 to 30 recruiting violations and will penalize the school with two years probation and a one-year ban on television and bowl appearances, a Dallas newspaper reported today.

NCAA officials are expected to make an official announcement of its action soon, possibly as early as today, the Dallas Morning News said in a copyrighted story.

SMU president L. Donald Shields headed a delegation in an appearance before the NCAA Infractions Committee in Minneapolis last month. Dr. Shields, named president of SMU late last year after the violations occurred, received the committee's confidential report of its findings the school was given 15 days to appeal its case, the Morning News said.

A few days remain before deadline expires, but sources of the newspaper no appeal was made.
