Cody Barney, 3, finds that the real thing is much more fun than a toy car as he sits behind the wheel of a Honda parked in front of the Creamery on the Texas A&M campus. Cody is the son of Dwayne and Roxy Barney of Bryan.

The MSC Great Issues Committee Monday will present a program entitled, "The Space Shuttle: Its Impact on the Future." NASA Planning Executive Walter Scott will present a short film and slide show illustrating uses of the space shuttle.

Scott is currently working on the Research and Technology Operating Plan (RTOPs) at NASA, that involves various advanced technology programs.

Scott received the Presidential Medal of Freedom Award for his support of the Apollo 13 mission. The program will be at 8 p.m. in Rudder Theatre. Admission is free.

Natural healer to be arraigned

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. — A mail-order "doctor" whose flourishing practice in Albuquerque attracted lots of patients, also attracted the attention of the authorities.

Ron L. Reid's "naturopathy" practice produced few complaints, according to Assistant District Attorney Howard Anderson, but he has been charged anyway, with practicing medicine without a license.

Reid, 44, of Lubbock, Texas, received a degree in 1976 from Benadean University in Las Vegas, Nev. Since then the school has been forbidden to sell degrees in that state.

Authorities said that for a while, he had a thriving practice in Albuquerque, where he performed pelvic exams and pap smear tests, and dispensed thyroid pills and "Dr. Reid's vitamins."

"There wasn't a hell of a lot of complaints," Anderson said. "Some of the people who went to him took the vitamins and said they never felt better."

Authorities said they believe Reid is in Texas, but they expect him to return to Albuquerque for arraignment in District Court within two weeks.

"He never claimed he was a medical doctor, but he was personally giving out medicine prescriptions," Anderson said.
