Cancer claims musical entertainer Vera-Ellen

United Press International HOLLYWOOD — Vera-Ellen, the dimpled Kewpie-doll entertainer who danced with Bing Crosby, Fred Astaire, Gene Kelly and Danny Kaye in movie musicals, has died of cancer. She was 55.

The star of such motion picture classics as "On the Town," "Words and Music" and "White Christmas" died Sunday night at UCLA Medical Center, a hospital spokeswoman said Tuesday.

Born Vera-Ellen Rhoe in Cincinnati, Ohio, Vera-Ellen began her career at 13 as a winner of Major Bowes Original Amateur Hour in New York City. She toured with a Bowes' troupe and the Ted Lewis Band and worked as a member of the Rockettes at New York City's Radio City Music Hall.

The slender blonde performer then appeared on Broadway in a number of productions including "Very Warm for May" in 1939, "Higher and Higher" in 1940, "Panama Hattie," and her breakthrough performance in "A Connecticut Yankee" in 1943.

Vera-Ellen came to Hollywood under contract to Sam Goldwyn in 1945 to star with Kaye in "Wonderman," followed by "The Kid from Brooklyn," again with Kaye. Perhaps her most memorable performance was in the "Words and Music," in which she and Kelly starred in the "Slaughter on Tenth Avenue" number.

Vera-Ellen's last film was "Be Happy" with Tony Martin in 1957.

For the past 24 years she lived in retirement in her wood Hills home. She was married and divorced twice, to dancer Robert Hightower, businessman Victor Rothman who she divorced in 1968.

There were no surviving members. A memorial service planned next Tuesday.
