Auto insurance costs will increase Nov. 1

United Press International
AUSTIN, Texas — Texas drivers will pay 16.3 percent, or $221 million, more to insure their cars as of Nov. 1 now that the State Board of Insurance has approved its staff's rate hike recommendation.

The increase approved Wednesday was less than the 23.7 percent, $332 million increase the insurance industry had requested. The industry requested the increase on grounds that while Texas drivers were involved fewer accidents, the claims were larger.

Board Chairman William P. Daves Jr. said the staff's proposal has "ample built-in safeguards to generate reasonable rates."

The board last year denied a 28 percent industry rate hike request. At that time, Daves said, inflation was causing an increase in the cost of automobile repairs and replacements.

But, he also said the insurance companies were earning higher interest rates on their invested assets because of inflation.

Daves said Wednesday's rate hike would be "an interim step" because the board has yet to decide how the investment income of all sources should be considered when property and casualty rates are determined.

The agency has received funds from the Legislature to conduct a two-year study to determine the best method of including investment income in the insurance rate-making process.

Daves said an analysis of the insurance industry's financial status has not changed, but the companies are experiencing some capital losses in their bond portfolio. He said the trend is likely to continue.

"Even though the overall net income figures for the industry look good, I am concerned that sustained high levels of long-term interest rates may subject the investment portfolio of companies to instability in the coming years," Daves said.

David Irons, a Dallas attorney who represents the Texas Automobile Insurance Service Office, commended the board for its timely decision, but said his organization still does not agree with the board's method of determining automobile insurance rate increases.

However, Irons said his office, TAISO would not take legal action because of the board's decision to conduct the study of rate-making methods.

Pro-lifers threatening to drop GOP support

United Press International
DALLAS — Conservative political organizer Paul Weyrich said Thursday should Supreme Court nominee Sandra O'Connor prove to be pro-abortion during her confirmation hearings next week, the Reagan administration will have turned its back on the conservative groundswell that helped elect him.

"I think her testimony before the Senate will be the determining factor," Weyrich said. "I would say he turned his back on us if she confirms her past record."

Weyrich, one of the main speakers Thursday at an anti-abortion rally sponsored by the conservative National Roundtable, said Reagan's conservative political support could weaken if O'Connor is viewed as being pro-abortion.

"These people want very badly to support Reagan and want very badly to be a part of the team, and they are looking for a signal that the White House wants them and is interested in their agenda," Weyrich said.

He said the conservative coalition was not unreasonable and does not expect its entire agenda to be approved.

"But we don't believe these (social issues like abortion) are fringe issues, which I'm afraid is partly the view of the administration," said Weyrich, executive director of the Committee for the Survival of a Free Congress.

Patrick Monaghan, an adviser to the political advocacy wing of the Roundtable, compared the anti-abortion movement to the anti-slavery and civil rights movements. He said if Congress does not approve a right-to-life statute, as the Roundtable wants, the battle will continue.

Monaghan said Wednesday anti-abortion supporters would be willing to drop their support of conservative Republicans at the snap of a finger if some sort of provision is not made to guarantee the right to life.

The Roundtable is holding the first of five national rallies Thursday. Ed E. McAteer, president of the organization, said the meeting is being held partly because of the nomination hearings next week for Supreme Court Justice-designate Sandra O'Connor and partly to let Congress know the feelings of grassroots America before it begins consideration of abortion legislation.

McAteer said the primary goal of the group was to educate people on the issue of abortion.

"The O'Connor nomination was part of the catalyst for the meeting," McAteer said. "Mrs. O'Connor's legislative record is pro-abortion."

McAteer, who heads the conservative religious organization, said he would like to see President Reagan take back the nomination of the Arizona federal judge, but said he does not have much hope it would be done.

Promoters say more than 12,000 people are expected to attend the meeting featuring Paul Weyrich; the Rev. Jerry Falwell, founder of the Moral Majority; anti-feminist Phyllis Schlafly and James Robison, a Fort Worth, evangelist.

In addition, officials say the Roundtable's state organizations will sponsor vigils at federal buildings in every state capital and in major cities across the country.

McAteer said the emphasis of the meeting was to "educate" people on abortion and to tell them "How the system works and how the elected and appointed politicians vote."

McAteer said the day-long rally will provide evidence that life begins at conception and the group will try to drum up support for a right-to-life statute.

OFFICIAL NOTICE TO STUDENT CONCERNING TEXAS A&M UNIVERSITY STUDENT RECORDS POLICY

Annually, Texas A&M University informs students of the Family Educational Rights and Privacy Act of 1974. This Act, with which the University intends to comply fully, is intended to protect the privacy of education records, to establish the rights of students to inspect and review their education records, and to provide guidelines for the correction of inaccurate or misleading data through informal and formal hearings. Students also have the right to file complaints with the Family Educational Rights and Privacy Act Office of the Department of Education in Washington, D.C. concerning alleged failures by the University to comply with the Act.

Local policy explains in detail the procedures to be used by the University for compliance with the provisions of the Act. Copies of the policy can be obtained at the Office of the Registrar, located in Heaton Hall on the Texas A&M University campus.

Questions concerning the Family Educational Rights and Privacy Act may be referred to the Office of the Registrar.

DIRECTORY INFORMATION

The Family Educational Rights and Privacy Act of 1974 permits a university to establish certain categories of information regarding students as "directory information," and to then disclose this information to third parties without the student's prior consent. However, prior to releasing directory information concerning a student, the University must have afforded the student the opportunity to indicate that he does not want directory information concerning himself released without his prior written permission.

Texas A&M University proposes to designate the following personally identifiable information contained in a student's education records as "directory information."

- The student's name
- The local address, home address including country, and the telephone numbers of the student
- The date and place of birth of the student

- The student's class schedule
- Participation in officially recognized activities and sports by the student
- Weight and height of members of athletic teams
- Dates of attendance, degrees and awards received
- Previous educational agencies or institutions attended by the student
- Sex, nationality, race and age of the student
- The student's photograph
- Achievement awards or honors
- The student's class standing
- Parking permit information

The University will release "directory information" to third parties unless the University receives timely, written objection to such release in accordance with the procedure herein described.

Students who wish to have "directory information" withheld must complete the appropriate form in the Registrar's Office by Friday, September 18, 1981. Students who have requested information withheld in the past must renew their request each year within the first three weeks of the fall semester.

The student must realize that approximately one month is needed to remove this information from materials already in circulation. However, the campus directory is printed only once a year, and after printing, no information can be removed.

The student is responsible for renewing this request each September, and the validity of the requests extends from the date of the request to the following September 1st.
