Caradock ap Owain (r) holds his left arm behind his back to signify that it has received a debilitating blow from his opponent, Edward MacGraeme, in a medieval fencing exhibition Saturday evening near the Rudder fountain. Owain, who is also known as Troyce Wilson, a senior marketing major from Sanger, and MacGraeme, also known as Ed Graham, a senior physics major from San Antonio, are both members of the Society for Creative Anachronisms. The group was one of many that participated in the MSC Open House Saturday.

Prints on sale

Students can bring the great outdoors inside to brighten up a barren dormitory or apartment wall.

The MSC Arts Committee this week is sponsoring a laser photo print sale. Laser photo prints, mainly nature shots, will be on sale today through Friday from 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. in the MSC main hall.

The laser photo prints are focused sharper than regular photos, said Teresa Chiang, MSC Arts Committee adviser. The prints will sell for $3 each, or two for $5.

Chiang said there is a possibility that extra workers will be needed to help sell the prints. Volunteers get prints free or at a reduced price, she said.

Auditions open

The MSC Madrigal Dinner Committee is holding auditions today through Sept. 14 for Renaissance-type singers and musicians.

The Madrigal dinners are a recreation of European medieval celebrations. Sometimes called Boar-head feasts, the dinners were a thanksgiving celebration held by both peasants and lords.

Persons interested in singing and dancing should sign up for auditions in Room 3 MSC. Interested musicians should contact Penelope Kosztołnyic at 846-5486.

A peasant fair featuring arts and crafts from all areas of the state will be held prior to the dinner and plays Dec. 3, 4 and 5.

Free ice cream

Attention ice cream lovers: the Student Y Association will hold an ice cream extravaganza tonight at 6:30, 201 MSC.

Free ice cream will be served to students interested in becoming involved in the Student Y organization.

Brazos County begins United Way campaign

By RANDY CLEMENTS

Battalion Reporter
Commending United Way for part in revitalizing volunteerism, U.S. Rep. Phil Gramm, D-College Station, Friday helped kick off the organization's 1981-82 Brazos County campaign at the Brazos Center.

Speaking to a group of about 50 persons, Gramm said America has moved away from the system of taking care of people on a basis of local responsibility.

This system, he said, resulted in the loss of voluntary involvement and the ability of local government to oversee where the money should go.

Jim Scamardo, United Way drive chairman, said neighbors should help neighbors; people should not expect the federal government to help.

Local people helping local people is more natural anyway," Scamardo said. "The drive reemphasizes the old tradition of helping our neighbors."

Gramm said the United Way shows that people want to take care of their neighbors who have legitimate needs, but only voluntarily.

The United Way, which supports 18 agencies in Brazos County, has a 1981-82 goal of raising $280,925. Some of these agencies are: the Bluebonnet Girl Scout Council, the Arthritis Foundation, the Arrowmoon District of Boy Scouts of America and the Brazos Valley Rehabilitation Center.

But, Scamardo said he expects the drive to exceed that goal. There are untapped sources in the community, he said, expressing confidence these sources not only will help meet, but also help exceed the goal.

"Some people in the community have never been asked to give or participate in the drive," Scamardo said.

This year's advanced gifts — contributions received before 4:30 p.m. Friday — exceed last year's advance gifts by 16 percent. Financial institutions, commercial institutions and manufacturing and industrial institutions contribute advance gifts.

Also present at the campaign's kickoff were: State Sen. Kent Caperton, D-5th District, Brazos County Judge R.J. "Dick" Holmgreen, College Station Mayor Gary Halter, Miss Texas A&M University Cindy Green and Texas A&M System Chancellor Frank W.R. Hubert.

Hubert's presentation included a poem commending the volunteers for the United Way. He ended the poem urging everyone to "give until it helps."

Dollar may be reduced to 13 cents in 30 years

The dollar will be worth only 13 cents 30 years from now at today's inflation rate, says a Texas A&M professor.

Dr. Karl Putnam, an accounting professor, said federal income tax law changes effective in January 1982 will make it easier for workers to save funds for their retirement.

"It's important people invest their money for retirement during inflationary times," said Putnam. "Assuming a 7 percent inflation rate, a dollar 30 years from now will only buy what about 13 cents does today."
