McCatty pitches A's past Rangers, 3-0

United Press International OAKLAND — Oakland A's pitcher Steve McCatty doesn't want to talk about his chances of winning this year's American League Cy Young award. Instead, McCatty says, his goal is plain and simple — to pitch in the World Series.

But whether or not McCatty likes the Cy Young speculation, he's going to hear more of it if he keeps pitching the way he is.

Tuesday night, McCatty, 11-6, allowed only three hits and notched his second straight shutout and fourth of the year in leading the A's to a 3-0 victory over the Texas Rangers.

"Cy Young, who's he?" McCatty said when asked of the award. "I don't think about the Cy Young award, I think about winning, about winning the World Series." Manager Billy Martin, who watched the game from his office while serving out a suspension, agrees with those who believe McCatty has an inside on picking up the award.

"I think his record speaks for itself," Martin said. "He's got a super chance at the Cy Young."

The Texas Rangers won't argue with Martin's opinion. McCatty completely closed down the Rangers' offense.

Overshadowed by McCatty's awesome pitching display was a fine performance by veteran Texas reliever Charlie Hough who made a rare start. Hough, 0-1, only gave up three hits in his seven-inning stand but one of those was a first-inning homer by Rickey Henderson.

"I just got it (the ball) too high," Hough said of the pitch to Henderson. "I was trying to throw strikes early."

Hough was relieved in the eighth when the A's added two runs on a single by Wayne Gross, walks to Mike Heath, a groundout that moved the runners up, a safety squeeze bunt by Rob Picciolo and an RBI single by Henderson.

The victory put the A's in first place in the American League West just percentage points ahead of the Kansas City Royals.

Cedeno ejected as Brave hand Astros 3-2 setback

United Press International ATLANTA — Chris Chambliss and Cesar Cedeno provided the excitement for a sparse crowd of 2,800 fans at the Atlanta Braves-Houston Astros game Tuesday night in Atlanta Stadium.

Chambliss hit a two-run double in the ninth inning to give the Braves a 3-2 victory over the Astros and pull within 3½ games of the National League West leaders.

But Cedeno furnished the real excitement in the first inning when he leaped into the stands to scuffle with a fan he claimed was calling him names, mostly "Killer, Killer."

Cedeno was ejected from the game after the incident which occurred after he struck out to end the inning and was heading for his first base position.

Cedeno became incensed at something shouted from the stands. He jumped over the rail behind the visiting dugout and began scuffling with the fan.

The Astros left their dugout and several players rushed into the stands to separate Cedeno from the fan.

"I have my family along on the trip," said Cedeno. "I do not enjoy anybody calling me anything that I'm not. Just for the fact that somebody paid six dollars I don't have to be insulted up to the point where they called my name and I turn around and they're gonna point at me and curse me out. I would not go for that."

Houston manager Bill Virdon refused to comment on the incident.

"I didn't see anything. I didn't hear anything," he said.

There was little action for next seven innings.

Then, in the eighth, Braves' pitcher Steve Carlton pitched to Atlanta's first baseman, Fred McGriff. McGriff hit a home run to tie the game. The Astros scored twice in the eighth off starter Larry Williams, who had pitched a game through the first five innings. With one out, Art Howe walked and Dickie Thon hit him. Gary Woods then doubled right-center to score Thon. Kiko Garcia followed with a single to center.

Claudell Washington walked a Sambito pitch to lead off Braves' ninth inning and then Billy Smith, 1-1, gave up a run to Bob Horner. Eddie Miller for Horner and Chambliss hit his double to left-center to make winner of Rick Camp, 8-2.

Chambliss downplayed the importance of the victory for Braves, who had lost three rows to the Astros.

"It was not a must-win game," said Chambliss. "I think that left here being five out we win five straight or lose straight. It's an unpredictable game."

Medical auxiliary sponsors weekend tennis tourney

The Brazos-Robertson Counties Medical Auxiliary in cooperation with the Texas A&M Pre-Nursing organization is sponsoring the September Open Tennis Tournament this weekend.

Proceeds from the tournament, held at the Omar Smith tennis center on campus, will provide nursing scholarships and funds for the Texas A&M Medical School.

CHRIST

He's easy winner in any contest for THE MOST HATED AND THE MOST LOVED PERSON OF ALL HISTORY! Oddly enough, He has something to say to both those who hate Him and those that love Him and even those who may not care to listen to Him. We think He has spoken authentically in the Bible in simple terms, not just a lot of meaningless religious gobbledygook but rockbottom facts about people living with people, the energy problem, sexual freedom, war, getting ahead, ugly people, fun, money, fanatics, doing your thing, study and results, hypocrisy, dirty talk, for Christ's sake, heaven and hell, body and soul, jogging, smart losers, normal schizophrenics. Of course, we can't cover everything every Sunday but you'll get some of it any time. We try to get down to the basics. You may really like it!
