Fans can be optimistic, coach says

Wilson praises football team

By MARY JO RUMMEL

Battalion Report: Experience, leadership, attitude and scheduling are reasons for Aggie football fans to be optimistic about the 1981 football season, Head Coach Tom Wilson told the Class of '83 Thursday night. "The football players are eager, they believe in what they are doing, they believe in themselves and they think they are going to win when they go on the field," he said. Attitude is a major part of a team's performance, he said.

"We have a very experienced football team," Wilson said. He attributed the team's experience to exceptional recruiting during the last two or three years and to the number of juniors and sophomores who can boast quite a lot of playing time.

And though they are small in number, the seniors (10) on the squad provide the necessary leadership, Wilson said. "You cannot have a successful football team, or (have) any organization turn out to be a success without strong leadership."

Another circumstance which contributes to optimism this year is the scheduling of the games, the coach said. This year the Aggies will face the University of Texas,

Arkansas University, Southern Methodist University and the University of Houston at Kyle Field. "It will make a big difference," Wilson said.

Wilson said he is looking forward to "coming back home to Kyle Field and the tremendous spirit (of team supporters)."

He asked students to make an effort to come to participate in the spirit line outside Cain Hall when the players head for Kyle Field before the Louisiana Tech game. The spirit of the student body really motivates the players, Wilson said.

In describing Saturday's game against California at Berkeley which the Aggies won 29-28, Wilson said that the Aggies "played well but not exceptionally well."

Last year the Aggies posted a record of 4 wins and 7 losses. Wilson said he recognizes the team has had problems during the last few years but he said he feels the team has resolved them.

A graduate of Texas Tech University, Wilson came to Texas A&M in 1975 as offensive coordinator and quarterback coach. In 1978 he was named as head coach of the Aggie team upon the resignation of Emory Bellard.

Budget cuts could affect care of mental patients

United Press International
DALLAS — The problem is simple: More people are going crazy — to the point that others notice — than ever before.

University of Texas at Dallas professor Philip Armour warns that nationwide budget cuts may curb the trend to community-based health care and force the mentally ill back into the traditional "cuckoo's nest."

"Evidence suggests, unfortunately, that we'll never completely do away with the mental hospitals," said Armour. "Local centers could be reversed if people continue to vote with their pocket-books."

The statistics speak for themselves, Armour said. In 1955, there were 1.7 million reported "psychiatric episodes." By the mid-1970s, the figure had risen to

5.2 million people with "abnormal" problems. "Yes," he said, "there are a lot more 'crazy' people out there today."

But based on the Reagan Administration budget, a major departure from 30-year trends, he said: "We face a crisis in caring for the aged and mentally ill with declining public budgets for the health industry. There is the prospect of having more 'snake pits' for the aged and senile."

The Reagan approach is to make block grants to the states, each earmarked for a broad purpose, such as human resources.

"It is then up to Texas to decide whether it goes to alcoholism treatment, meal centers for the aged, or mental health centers," he said.

"I expect to read stories where monies are lost in the block and problems increase among aged and mentally ill. How can let psychotics walk the streets out proper monitoring?"

Armour said he's bringing many of these concerns in a coming book, "The Cycles of Social Reform: Mental Health Policymaking in the U.S., England and Sweden."

The study finds the U.S. States had community-based and financed — mental health care until the federal government became involved through the National Institute of Mental Health in 1946, formed in part because of "large numbers of persons projected for military service in psychiatric hospitals."

Since 1955, a congressional study suggested mental health steered toward decentralization and away from large hospitals had become "part of the problem and not the solution. These states were often not able to get back into society."

During the administration of President John F. Kennedy, interest in mental health intensified. The United States had "the most successful in governmental, community-based psychiatric services that autonomous from class," Armour said.

But the trend now appears a drying up of funds, which could lead to less desirable treatments which in turn discourages mentally ill to seek help.
